Space Dog Is Dead, Reds Say

LONDON (UP) — Moscow dispatches said today the space dog aboard earth satellite Sputnik II was generally believed to be dead.

United Press Correspondent Henry Shapiro said Moscow scientific circles believed the little dog had been given a sleeping draught to make death painless as the power supplies failed aboard the satellite.

The Italian Communist organ L'Unita which previously reported Laika had been poisoned said later the animal had been given a sleeping draught and is now "sleeping an eternal sleep."

The Stockholm Communist Daily Ny Dag said today many persons in Moscow believed Laika had landed in Russia but had not yet been found by search parties. It reported an "extremely strong interest in Laika's fate in Moscow."

The belief Laika was dead was generally confirmed by a Moscow announcement the "medical and biological observations had been completed" and that observation now would be by sight or by radar.

Moscow said last week the dog would live only as long as radio signals were emitted from Sputnik II.

Hint At Sun Energy

Today's official Soviet Communist organ Pravda meanwhile hinted the Soviets were working on a satellite which would pick up energy from the sun.

There was renewed speculation in Moscow the little dog had been ejected from the satellite in an attempt to get it back to earth, but an official announcement failed to materialize.

Moscow Radio said only the telemetric instruments aboard the second satellite had finished their operations and that all further observations of the satellite would be visual.

This meant the batteries probably had failed aboard Sputnik II a little more than a week after it was sent into space 1,200 miles above the earth. And with the end of the power supply would be the end of radio signals — and the electrical circuit which kept Laika air conditioned and fed.

Moscow said the program of scientific studies connected with receiving data from the Sputnik "was planned for seven days and at present this program is fully completed."

Regardless of whether Laika was alive or dead, the successful

VETERANS DAY MEMORIAL SERVICES — Monessen paused this morning to pay tribute to its war dead as part of the annual Veterans Day observance. Walter Kwolek, senior vice commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Angelo Giannini, commander of the American Legion, gave this hand salute after placing a wreath on the memorial at Sixth St. Park. The two city veterans posts sponsored the brief service, which included an address by Rev. John Conway, assistant of St. Leonard's Church.

Falls 50 Feet Into River from Donora Bridge

John Bill, 43, of 221 Linden Ave. rear, Monessen, died late Saturday night following an auto accident and a 50-foot fall from the Webster-Donora bridge into the cold waters of the Monongahela River.

He died of a broken neck and broken back suffered either when his car crashed into the bridge railing or when his body struck the surface of the river. He did not die from drowning, according to Westmoreland County Coroner Stephen D. Yoney, Monessen.

Yoney termed the death as "accidental."

Bill, according to reports, was traveling towards Donora on the bridge about 10:30 Saturday night when he apparently lost control, swerved across the road and rammed into the left side of the bridge, causing the left front door to fly open. Yoney's report this morning said Bill, in a dazed condition, left the car and "fell over the rail of the bridge."

Stories Vary

However, an unidentified couple, who turned in the alarm to Webster firemen, said they saw Bill leave his car after the crash and "go over the rail into the river," according to firemen.

His body was found a few feet from shore, directly under the spot where the car was stopped. Firemen Oliver Strang, Herman Blick Jr., and David England, waded into the river and pulled Bill ashore.

A passing towboat illuminated the area with spotlights during the operation.

Firemen administered artificial respiration and oxygen for an hour and a half but their attempts were in vain.

Yoney said he believes death was almost instant from the neck and back injuries.

The car was slightly damaged.

Worked in Donora

The victim was employed at U. S. Steel's American Steel and Wire Division plant at Donora.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret; two sons, Charles and Ronald, at home; mother, Mrs. Anastasia Bill, Donora; two sisters, Ann, Donora, and Mrs. Marie Scrip, R. D., Donora, and a brother, Frank, Cleveland, Ohio.

Brief services will held from Yoney's Funeral Home, Monessen, tomorrow morning at 8:30, prior to additional services from St. John the Divine Russian Orthodox Church. The Rev. John Govrusik, pastor, will officiate.

Burial will be in Grandview Cemetery, Monessen.

'Open Houses' At Local Schools All This Week

A series of "open houses" will feature the 37th annual observance of American Education Week which begins today in Monessen.

Dr. Joseph Pallone, superintendent of public schools, urged parents to visit city schools during the week.

"It is to be understood that patrons are always welcome to visit the schools at any time," said Dr. Pallone. "But a special visit during Education Week will demonstrate a more cooperative interest in the schools."

Today is not included in the visitation schedule because of the Veterans Day holiday.

The schools will observe open house during schools hours for the remainder of the week as follows:

Tuesday, Nov. 12 — Ben Franklin, Lincoln and Linden.

Wednesday, Nov. 13 — Jefferson.

Thursday, Nov. 14 — Vocational Elementary.

Friday, Nov. 15 — Washington.

Open house for patrons of the Junior-Senior and Vocational High Schools will be an evening event. It is scheduled for next Monday from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m.

The purpose of the special week is to increase public understanding and appreciation of education as well as to explain current teaching methods. It is also hoped the visits will reveal school needs and problems.

Flares Reported Near Plane Crash Scene

HONOLULU (UP) — The Coast Guard ordered planes and ships to check out reports today that three white flares were seen in the area where a Pan American Stratocruiser with 44 persons aboard is reported missing.

The flares were reported Sunday night by two of the planes taking part in the giant air-sea search.

Along with three other clues—a patch of yellow dye, a report of another flare and an oil slick—they raised the hopes of the searchers that they could find survivors.

The Coast Guard said a Navy Super-Constellation sighted two white flares at 2:25 a.m. e.s.t. The Navy plane said the flares were 440 nautical miles toward Honolulu from the last position given by the missing plane and on the general course it would have followed a few minutes later.

Another Flare Sighted

Shortly after, an Air Force KB-50 refueling tanker sighted another white flare 340 nautical miles west of the flight the missing plane would have taken.

A spokesman said all search planes in the area are under strict orders not to use flares. There was no other apparent explanation for the lights other than that they really are flares, although the spokesman did not want to say that this meant there was life where the flares were sighted.

Earlier, searchers reluctantly discounted a report of a radio distress signal. They said it did not have the characteristics of emergency gear furnished Pan American planes.

Additional planes and ships joined today in the search, possibly the biggest ever such in peacetime.

This permitted the search area to be expanded to cover 150,000 square miles, believed to be a record for the Pacific. Expansion of the search area had been ordered

Flag Burning Held Here by Veterans Groups

Unserviceable American flags were burned yesterday by two Monessen veterans groups at the VFW tank memorial in City Park.

A committee representing the American Legion, Thomas McKee Post 28 and Veterans of Foreign Wars, Allison-Lescanac Post 1190 disposed of more than 150 flags after an impressive ceremony.

Most of the flags were collected Saturday from graves of veterans in the Grandview, Holy Name, St. Hyacinth and Kneseth Israel cemeteries. The flags had been placed last Memorial Day and were soiled and tattered.

After a fitting ritual, the flags were set aflame. At that point, the firing squad set off three volleys, which were followed by the bugle call "To the Colors."

Taking part in the ceremony were John Hurrianko, VFW commander; Angelo Giannini, Legion commander; Walter Kwolek, VFW senior vice-commander; Paul Komar, VFW chaplain; and John A. Snyder, Legion sergeant at-arms.

Sgt. Philip Columbus was in charge of the firing squad.

Fayette to Test Radio System

Fayette County's radio-hookup of all fire companies will be tested next Sunday at 6 p.m.

County Radio Marshall J.A. Matheny said the elaborate system will be completely installed this week.

All fire companies in the county have been asked to tune in their radio equipment at all times.

Sunday's test will be conducted by engineers of the Motorola Co., which installed the county-wide system. They will first turn on all county sirens at the same time, then activate each siren individually.

Memorial Service Is Held Here by Veterans

Traditional events will feature today's observance of Veterans Day in the Mon Valley.

The parade this year will be held in California, beginning at 4 p.m. There will also be memorial services in each valley community as well as a variety of sports events.

In Monessen, veterans representing American Legion Thomas McKee Post 28 and Veterans of Foreign Wars Allison-Lescanac Post 1190 participated in a joint memorial service at 11 a.m. at Sixth St. Park.

The Rev. John Conway, assistant pastor at St. Leonard's R. C. Church, delivered the memorial address.

Flags Distributed

Boy Scout Troop 3 of Monessen placed American flags along downtown streets this morning.

Veterans organizations in six valley communities will cosponsor the California celebration: Monessen, Charlerot, Donora, Belle Vernon, Monongahela and California.

The parade, expected to be one of the largest in the community's history, will include at least 15 musical groups. In addition to bands, there will be units from the regular Army, the Army Reserve and the National Guard.

All valley veterans posts will participate.

The Monessen section of the parade will be headed by the Monessen High School band. The city's VFW and Legions posts will follow. Marching with the VFW group will be State Commander William J. Tepsic and his aides.

Cost of Living Takes Another Jump in France

PARIS (UP)—The cost of living took another big jump in inflation ridden France today but Premier Felix Gaillard was expected to weather the storm because of international events.

The price boosts came in meats and coal. Beef and pork went up 4 to 8 cents a pound while ham rose 6 cents a pound. All were selling around $1.50 a pound.

Coal prices went up an average of 6.5 per cent per ton just as the first cold spell of the season gripped France. Early price increases for gas and electricity also loomed.

Although Frenchmen complained bitterly there was actually little that the new government could do to prevent them. The price rises reflected the season increases for meat and coal.

Ike Reported 'Fine'

WASHINGTON UP — President Eisenhower today completed his overnight medical checkup at Walter Reed Army Hospital and pronounced his own condition as "fine."

ROME, Ga. (UP)—Rep. Henderson L. Lanham, 69, a member of the House Appropriations Committee, was killed instantly Sunday when his car was struck by a switch engine at a railroad grade crossing.

The Georgia Democrat, elected to Congress in 1946, was enroute to deliver an address to the Floyd County Cerebral Palsy Association when the accident happened about 3 p.m.

Lanham was thrown from his car and was pronounced dead at the scene by the county coroner. The car was knocked 35 feet by the train and demolished.

Car Recovered, Another Stolen

A stolen car was recovered and another car was stolen over the weekend, Monessen police reported today.

A car belonging to John Span, 65 Willow Dr., which was stolen early Saturday morning, was found abandoned Saturday afternoon at the intersection of Routes 31-71 near West Newton.

Jerome Peters, R.D. 4, Irwin, told police his car was stolen while parked on East Donner Ave. between 12:30 and 3 a.m. today. The 1956 Chevrolet sedan, bearing license number 5362P, has a red top and white bottom.

Taylor's Book Store Is Looted

Someone broke into Taylor's Book Store at 451 Donner Ave., Monessen, between 5:45 and 9:30 p.m. yesterday and escaped after taking an undetermined amount of silver from three cash drawers, police reported today.

The burglary was discovered by Patrolman Paul Sowko during a routine check last night. He found a rear door broken.

James Taylor, owner, said a check revealed the burglar looted three cash drawers and also a container with state sales tax money.

No Holiday Today In Parking Meters

Today — Veterans Day — is not a legal holiday as far as the Monessen Police Department is concerned, as motorists who received parking tags will quickly attest.

The only time parking meters are not in operation here are Fourth of July, Labor Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Street meters will be in operation until 9 o'clock tonight.

No Disposition Made In 'Target' Shooting

No disposition has yet been made in connection with the shooting which took the life last week of Thomas A. Steer Jr., 16, of 921 Summit Ave., Monessen.

Steer, a Monessen High School junior, died late Thursday night of a bullet wound inflicted the Sunday before when he and four juvenile companions, all from Monessen, were engaged in "target practice" with .22 caliber rifles in an area near Twilight Borough.

The bullet entered behind Steer's right ear and lodged in the brain. He died during a brain operation in Mercy Hospital, Pittsburgh.

The shooting took place in Washington County but juvenile authorities there are of the opinion that the disposition of the case should be made by Westmoreland County juvenile officials since Steer and his teenage companions are from Westmoreland County.

A reliable source said Judge Edward G. Bauer, Westmoreland County, last Friday said the case should be handled by Washington County. However, a juvenile authority from Washington told The Daily Independent over the weekend that "it is customary for the county, which those involved live in, to decide such a situation."

The coroner's office in Allegheny County, where death occurred, told The Independent this morning it is referring the case to Washington County authorities "since that is where the accident happened."

Steer and his companions, all Monessen High students, were reportedly "horsing around" with the rifles when a slug caught Steer. It was said the person who fired the shot had intended to shoot over the victim's head.

Funeral services were held this afternoon. Fellow classmates attended in a body.

Three Motor Accidents Reported in District

Three motor accidents in the district over the weekend were reported by state police today.

Two cars and truck were involved in a mishap late Saturday morning on Webster Hollow Rd. Drivers of the cars were Frank Magnone, 22, of Jacobs Creek, and Ethel Weightman, 18, of R. D. 1, Belle Vernon, while the truck driver was Oswald Dolfi, 44, of R. D. 1, Belle Vernon.

Dolfi, police said, had backed his truck onto the road from a driveway when both Magnone and Miss Weightman struck the left tail gate.

Damage was placed at $800.

Another three-vehicle crash occurred on Monessen-Webster Rd., Route 906, about one mile north of Monessen yesterday afternoon at 4:45.

Drivers involved were James Lyons, 26, R. D. 2, Monongahela; William Moss, 57, of North Charleroi, and Frank Warholik, 44, of 1603 Walnut Ave., Monessen.

Lyons was traveling south when he attempted to go around a car broken down, on the highway, causing him to collide with the Moss and Warholik machines, traveling north.

Damages were estimated at $1,600.

Robert L. Brewer, 31, New Eagle, was traveling on Route 837 near Donora yesterday morning when he apparently fell asleep at the wheel. The car went off the road, struck a utility pole and traveled about 90 feet before stopping.

He suffered a bruised nose. Police put the total damage at $600.

Refuses to Pay Cab Fare; Is Arrested

William Smith, 62, of 656 Third St., Monessen, was arrested Saturday night for being intoxicated after he refused to pay a $3 cab fare, local police reported today.

Smith, police said, hired a cab and then refused to pay the fare. The cab driver took him to the police station.

He was released yesterday afternoon after posting a $10 forfeit and paying the cab bill. He is scheduled for a hearing Friday night.

even before the flares were sighted.

Among the score or more of merchant and military ships taking part were the Navy carrier Philippine Sea, which steamed west from Long Beach, Calif., Saturday night for the search area.

Helicopters and search planes from the Philippine Sea were to join dozens of military and civilian aircraft droning over a corridor 150 miles wide and more than 1,000 miles long.

The search corridor stretched eastward to a spot 1160 miles from Hawaii at which the Stratoclipper last reported its position Friday.

At the time, the plane was bound from San Francisco to Honolulu with 36 passengers and eight crew members.

Suspect Held in Slayings of Two Highway Police

CLINTON, N C (UP)—A carnival worker was arrested at a hotel here Sunday night on suspicion that he might be connected with the slayings of two North Carolina highway patrolmen last Tuesday night

Police identified the man as Charles Gold, 37, who gave a Missouri address. Investigating officers said he would be held "until we can check out his story."

Gold aroused suspicion at a grill near here because he fitted the description of the dark-skinned, slightly-built gunman and because he was driving a car with Kentucky license plates. The manhunt for the killer has been centered in Kentucky since last Thursday.

Police said Gold had been in this area prior to the killings but "can't get his story straight" about his whereabouts since the manhunt began last Tuesday night.

Police said Gold told them he had been to Harlan, Ky., and Kingsport, Tenn., and bought the car in Harlan. He said he was enroute to a carnival playing in nearby Duplin County but that a check showed he had not previously been connected with the show, officers said.

The highway patrol put up a roadblock in an effort to catch the suspect after he was reported "acting suspiciously" at the grill. Patrolmen said he left the grill and "changed directions" several times during the chase and was later arrested at the Hotel Rufus King here.

Father of Four Kills Two Teen-age Girls

DAYTON, O (UP) — A 31-year-old father of four children was charged today with the murder of two teen-aged girls. Police said Robert Crites confessed he was in love with one of them, had promised to marry the other, and shot them because he was afraid of what his wife would say.

He allegedly confessed that he planned to drive with the girls' bodies to Colorado to find and kill his wife's sister because "she's just like the other two."

This plan, Crites told police, fell apart when the two bodies tumbled accidentally from the car into a suburban street. He then drove to his mother's home and telephoned police to give himself up.

Officers said Crites entered a Veterans Administration hospital voluntarily a few weeks ago for treatment of "anxiety." He attributed the anxiety to unemployment and was released when he was called back to work at the Frigidaire plant from which he had been laid off

Lt. Robert Beckett said Crites told him he picked up the two girls, Mrs. Deanna Jean Fouch, 16, and Beverly Eldered, 17, at a bowling alley Sunday afternoon He said he had promised to marry Miss Eldred but was really in love with Mrs. Fouch, who is separated from her husband.

"I didn't know how to get out of the mess," he told Beckett.

Crites allegedly said he took out his gun when the girls got in the car and waited a few minutes because "I wanted them to see the gun."

After the bodies fell from the car, Crites drove for a mile, tossed the spent shells into the street and went back. He saw a crowd at the scene and drove on to his mother's home

Mrs Fouch was dead of wounds in the head, arm and chest when police arrived. Miss Eldred, shot in the head, died en route to a hospital launching of Sputnik II and the world wide acclaim received by Soviet scientists still was having major effects throughout the world.

In Washington, President Eisenhower was meeting with his defense chiefs, presumably to push plans for a stepped up American missile-satellite program.

There also was a prediction by a high U.S. administration official that the Russians would take new steps into space before this country gets its main satellite into space next spring. A constant stream of Moscow broadcasts has indicated this, too.

A more encouraging report came from Washington where Deputy Defense Secretary Donald A. Quarles said the United States has rockets as powerful as the missile apparently used by Russia to launch its second earth satellite.

In Paris, the smaller members of NATO attacked the basic strategy of the alliance itself and said it had failed to provide an adequate air shield against growing Soviet might.

Sputnik also could change scientific education in the United States. The U.S Office of Education put out a study of Russian education showing the heavy emphasis on mathematics and other sciences; only last week President Eisenhower urged American schools to concentrate on scientific studies.

In Washington Dr. John P Hagen, head of the U.S. satellite-launching program, indicated the government may be cracking the code used by Sputnik when it was relaying signals back to the earth. He also said he thought the dog aboard probably had been killed.

Both Hagen and British scientists said they could not see how real scientific value could be derived from the short time the dog was in the satellite.

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Navy says Russia in a nuclear war would be almost defenseless against the Navy's new missile, the Polaris.

It makes the claim in a current message to fleet commanders and other top officers suggesting Russia's success with the earth satellite be viewed "in proper perspective"

The admirals, it is hinted, would do well to talk less about Sputnik and more about Polaris which the Navy says will offer a "significant addition" to national security.

—In a nuclear war an enemy's defenses "would be diluted to almost impotency" in an effort to counter attacks by the far-flung Polaris missile system, the three-page memorandum contends.

Steel Union Features Donora

Shutdown Benefits Explained

The United Steelworkers unveiled their new television series yesterday, devoting most of the first program to the shutdown at the Donora Zinc Works.

David J. McDonald, USW president, narrated the 15-minute filmed program which was shown on KDKA-TV at 1 p.m. The film will be distributed to other television stations at different time periods.

McDonald said the purpose of the new TV series was to tell dues-paying members and the general public how the big union functions.

He referred to the Zinc Works shutdown as "another Donora tragedy." But McDonald added that "hard-won union benefits" will ease the situation.

The USW president said that more than a million dollars will be shared by the approximately 400 men who have lost their jobs in Donora. This money will be supplied by the supplemental unemployment benefit program which McDonald said was won after the 34-day strike in 1956.

Under SUB, the furloughed employes will receive approximately two-thirds of their take-home pay for a year or until they find new employment, McDonald said.

Scenes of Donora

"Nobody is going to get rich on these benefits," McDonald said, "but nobody will have to go on relief either."

The program showed scenes of Donora and included interviews with workers and townspeople. An unidentified grocer said wives of Zinc Workers were still buying foodstuffs but no longer selected "choice cuts" of meats. He said SUB was serving as a cushion for both the employes and merchants.

Manuel Campa, president of the Zinc Works union, and Eugene Maurice, USW staff representative, both described the SUB program as a "Godsend" for the affected workers.

McDonald said the union plans to present similar television programs every month. The next show will explain how the union handles its money, he said.

McDonald, in his opening remarks, urged the 1,200,000 USW members to attend union meetings.

Glowing Objects Not Explainable As Phenomenon

PHILADELPHIA (UP) —Glowing objects sighted in the skies over New Mexico and West Texas last weekend are not explainable as a phenomenon, a distinguished meteorologist said Sunday.

Dr. Lincoln La Paz, director of the Meteoritic Institute of the University of New Mexico, said the egg-shaped glowing objects "cannot be explained as meteoritic fireballs or other related phenomena."

La Paz, in a radio interview here, reversed his position of last Tuesday when he said the unidentified flying objects were definitely explainable fireballs.

He said the Air Force investigation of the objects "might turn up something very interesting."

The meteorologist said the objects were sighted by an engineer and Air Force personnel at Holloman Air Force Base in Alamogordo, N. M.

"The people reporting this incident are trained personnel and carefully screened for security," La Paz said.

NEW CHAMBER HEAD — G. Richard Fryling, president of the Erie Resistor Corp., Erie, is the new president of the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce. He succeeds W.F. Rockwell Jr., Pittsburgh, and is the first Erie man to hold the top post.

Cold Canadian Air Hits Area; To Get Warmer

A mass of cold Canadian air produced the first sub-freezing temperatures in the district over the weekend.

The mercury tumbled to a low of 25 early today. By noon, the temperature had warmed to 36. The overnight low Saturday was 27.

The cold air will move slowly eastward during the next 24 hours and bring cold afternoon temperatures for district Veterans Day events, according to the U. S. Weather Bureau in Pittsburgh.

However the sun will be out most of the day and the mercury might climb as high as 40.

Clear and cold was expected tonight with temperatures again dipping below the freezing mark throughout the state.

A gradual warming trend is expected tomorrow, accompanied by increasing cloudiness and afternoon temperatures in the lower 50's.

home rooms prior to dismissal at 11 o'clock over the school's public address system.

The MHS observance included the pledge of allegiance led by Michael Mavias, president of the student council, the National Anthem and the reading of the Gettysburg Address by Karen Duda.

All city offices in Monessen were closed today. Most stores, however, observed normal shopping hours.

The Veterans Day observance on a national level centered on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery where wreaths were laid for the final time in a ceremony honoring solely the dead of World War I.

By next Nov. 11, remains of unknown soldiers of World War II and the Korean War will have been laid to rest alongside the World War I unknown.

Gov. Joe Foss of South Dakota, a Medal of Honor winner and a World War II and Korean War ace pilot, will deliver the principal address. He will be introduced by Maj. Gen. Melvin J. Maas, USMCR (ret.).

Veterans Administration chief Harvey V. Higley was chairman of a joint committee of all veterans organizations sponsoring the Arlington program, highlight of Veterans Day ceremonies across the nation.

The ceremonies marked the first appearance of the new Air Force Academy's 120-voice choral group.

Principal Explains High School Facilities

(This is the first in a series of articles on Monessen public schools. The articles were prepared by members of the Monessen Education Association as part of the 1957 observance of American Education Week, now in progress. Today's story deals with the Junior-Senior High School program and was written by Henry Furio, principal.)

By HENRY FURIO

Educating the youth of today on a secondary level requires the combination of many facets of human knowledge and an understanding of child growth and development.

The teacher today must have thorough knowledge of his subject material; be understanding and tactful; serve as a counselor, advisor, mother, father, big brother, big sister; teach thrift and citizenship, and stand ready to answer questions on almost any subject that is known to man.

Our Monessen Junior-Senior High School is equipped with the necessary physical plant and facilities and an adequately trained staff to give our children the training that will provide them with knowledge to take their place in the world of tomorrow.

Approximately 1416 students in grades 7 through 12 attending our Monessen Junior-Senior High School are taught by 65 teachers, 2 guidance counselors, a speech correctionist, a psychologist, Junior-Senior High principals, a vocational director, 2 school nurses, a dentist, a doctor and an attendance officer.

This staff provides the necessary services for a "modern educational program."

The Junior-Senior High School contains 40 classrooms and specialized areas such as a home economics laboratory, industrial arts department, chemistry laboratory, biology laboratory, physics laboratory, 2 general science demonstration laboratories, auto shop, machine shop, electric shop, library, art rooms, cafeteria, 2 gymnasiums, a swimming pool, instrumental room, and a vocal music room.

Monessen Junior-Senior High School offers specialized training to students in preparation for medicine, for ministry, dentistry, law, science, and engineering, teaching, nursing, secretarial and bookkeeping work, sales work, and such vocational trades as auto mechanics, machine shop training and electrical work.

The school is accredited by the Middle States Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges and the State Department of Public Instruction. Last year 41 per cent of Monessen High graduates were admitted to some institution for higher education. This is considerably higher than the national average of 20 per cent.

The Monessen school philosophy accentuates the belief that we owe our children the very best educational opportunities available. We feel the Monessen Junior-Senior High will keep abreast of what is good in education for our children.

Ike Honors Jesuits

JAMESTOWN, Va. (UP)—President Eisenhower paid tribute Sunday to eight Spanish Jesuit missionaries who are believed to have been the first European settlers of Virginia. In a message to the Axacan Memorial Committee, honoring the priests who were killed by Indians shortly after their arrival in 1570, the President said "Our nation has an imperishable legacy in the heroic pioneers who came here from many lands and creeds. It is well to remember with gratitude those who contributed so much to the spiritual resources of our country."

Lawrence Will Confer Today in Transit Strike

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Mayor David L. Lawrence conferred with state and federal mediators today in another effort to find a formula to end the city's 29-day transit strike.

Lawrence and the mediators were exploring ways to get representatives of Pittsburgh Railways Co. and the union representing its 2,200 striking bus and trolley operators back to the bargaining table.

In a weekend statement, the mayor declared:

"The union and the company must recognize their obligations to their fellow citizens in this area. They must do it now."

John Boyle, president of Division 85, Street, Electric Railways and Motor Coach Employes, reiterated that it was management's turn to move in its position.

"We have moved twice and any concessions so far have come from our side," he said. Shortly before the walkout, the union dropped its wage demands from 36 cents an hour to 31 cents and lowered its fringe benefit demands.

The company so far has stuck by its pre-strike offer of raises totaling 16 cents an hour spread over two years.

Monessen High School Senior, Junior Classes Hold Annual Elections

The senior and junior classes of Monessen High School have begun the 1957-58 school year by electing their officers and council members.

Jerry Essey was elected senior class president. Other senior officers are: Nancy Ronick, vice-president; Judy Todaro, secretary; and Kathy Swade, treasurer.

Senior Council members include Elizabeth Katsuleris and Louis Gigliotti, Chemistry; Pat D'Antonio and Dick DiBiaso, Physics; Maxine Maxwell and Ron Lipnicky, Art A; Diance DeRocco and Mike Kunsa, Art B; Dolores Lenio and Michael George, Room 10; and Janis Komar and Charles Bill, Room 20.

Newly elected Junior Class officers are C. L. Melenyzer, president; Bill Mackinen, vice president; Laurel Shutterly, secretary; and Penny Byron, treasurer.

Comprising the Junior Council are Arlene Yonko and Ron Rizzuto, Room 102; Kay Farnsworth and Stuart Samuels, Room 105; Stacy Weible and Gene Malarbi, Room 106; Patti Spirko and Steve Burns, Room 107; Shirley Boyd and Mike Berthine, Room 111; Kathy Dolnack and Anthony Bellora, Room 112; and Rosemary Vallozzi and Anthony Bisceglia, Biology.

At the November meeting of the entire senior class, the senior officers and Senior Council members were introduced to the class by Henry Furio, high school principal.

Mrs. Dorothy Hicks, class sponsor, announced that Monessen High School has been selected as a testing center for the College Board Exams. Previously, Monessen and other district students took the exams in Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Hicks also announced at the meeting that the annual Christmas Dance will be held on December 20, and the prom date will be May 2.

At a previous combined meeting of the Junior and Senior councils, Jimmy Gamble's orchestra was selected for the Christmas Dance, and Tommy Carlyn's orchestra selected for the prom.

Heavy Snowfall In Parts of the Great Lakes Area

By UNITED PRESS

Clearing weather today eased the sting of a weekend storm that whipped parts of the Great Lakes region with one to eight inches of snow and claimed at least 11 lives.

Heavy snow squalls and icy winds left a blanket of snow along the lee shores of the Great Lakes Sunday and brought an additional two-to-five-inch snow cover to parts of Western New York, previously hit by a three-to-five-inch accumulation.

Snow up to four inches snarled traffic in Western New York's Onondaga County Sunday, and about 150 cars were stalled on the newly opened Penn-Canada Highway sections near Syracuse, N. Y. A traffic accident claimed the life of a young mother.

The death brought to 11 the number of weather-caused fatalities in the northern third of the nation since Friday.

Five inches of snow accumulated at Erie, Pa., four inches at Olean and Syracuse, N.Y., and three inches at Buffalo, N.Y.

A high pressure area in the Ohio Valley brought clearing weather to much of the east, and a storm center near Washington brought southerly winds and warming temperatures to the north central section.

Generally fair weather is seen for the Southwest and fair and warmer weather is expected in the Plains, Great Lakes and Ohio Valley.

Occasional rain is likely in the Southern Plains and lower Mississippi Valley and fair but cool weather is expected along the Atlantic Coast.

Blast Off

ST. LOUIS (UP) — Raymond Pitts really wasn't trying to make like a satellite when he launched himself from a ramp and went sailing out into space. Pitts drove up a ramp to cross the Mississippi River, noted too late that it wasn't a bridge he was on but the uncompleted Mark Twain Express way. He was treated for minor injuries after his car dropped 18 feet to the ground.

Donora Coach Is Guest Speaker At Holy Name

John P. (Moon) Clark, assistant football coach at Donora High School, was the guest speaker at a Holy Name Society Communion Breakfast yesterday at the Most Holy Name of Jesus Church.

Over 100 men attended the breakfast after receiving Communion in a body at the 8 a.m. mass. The Rev. Augustin Stefko, assistant pastor, celebrated the mass, which was served by these members of the Society: Anthony Idzik, Edward Kovach, George Kerestes and Thomas Sassak.

Clark spoke on the importance of having "Confidence in God." The Rev. Joseph A. Gajdosik, pastor, talked briefly about the activity of "Laymen in the Catholic Church."

A short business session followed with President John S. Plavko in charge. Election of officers for 1958 will take place in December.

The breakfast was prepared by Miss Millie Tomaskovic and Mrs. Anna Butchko and served in the church cafeteria.

Crucible Miners To Meet Today

WAYNESBURG, Pa. (UP) — Striking miners of the Greene County mine of Crucible Steel Co. were to meet today to discuss a possible end to a week-long walkout which last week spread to at least 16 other major mines and idled more than 10,000 workers.

All mines in the area were closed for Veterans Day, as provided by the United Mine Workers contracts. The 400 Crucible workers went on strike last Monday in a seniority dispute arising out of the furloughing of 86 men at the pit.

Leaders of UMW local 4731 conferred during the week end and called the membership meeting for today. District UMW officials have urged the men to return to their jobs.

The Voter's Duty Is Not to Himself

SOME Republican political leaders around the country are dismayed because, in last Tuesday's election, the Negro voters of the North apparently did not flock to the Republican banner as a means of expressing their resentment of the Little Rock integration incident.

In our opinion, however, the Negro voters are to be commended, not for sticking to the Democratic party from force of habit if that's what they did, but for resisting any temptation to put their interests as Negroes before their responsibilities as citizens.

Negroes certainly have a right to be resentful when members of their race are mistreated and discriminated against in violation of the law, whether that happens in Little Rock, Ark., or in Levittown, Pa. And it would be hard to find fault with them if they were to attempt to express this resentment in the voting booth.

This would be wrong nevertheless. It is the duty of the citizen to vote for what he believes to be best for the nation and the community, not just for what he thinks will benefit himself and his family or his racial, religious or economic group.

* * *

IT IS ONE of the weaknesses of American political life today that too many of our people are forgetting this primary obligation of the citizen. And too many political leaders play to this weakness, encouraging voters to think of their selfish interests first and the common good after that.

Thus it was that the Republican politicians evidently expected the Negroes of New Jersey to vote against the Democratic governor of their state because of the misdemeanors of the Democratic governor of Arkansas in the Little Rock episode.

Democratic politicians do the same thing, of course. In the recent judicial campaign here in Westmoreland County, they solicited votes on the basis of nationalistic origin, religious affiliation, economic group and other considerations which have nothing to do with the administration of justice in the courts. And apparently the tactic succeeded in many instances.

But this is dead wrong. Political decisions made in this fashion can lead America to disaster.

As the nation strives for perfection in the field of civil rights, we hope Negroes will try hard not to let their special concern in such matters cloud their thinking about other public problems. If they can do this, they will set an example for other groups of citizens. And they will help the politicians understand that the first concern of real Americans is not for their own pocketbooks or the advancement of their own kind at the expense of others but for a better country and better communities for all our people.

This is the only kind of America that is worth loving and fighting for.

What Happened?

WHETHER or not to withhold from publication the names of juveniles involved in criminal cases is a problem which is under constant discussion, especially by law enforcement agencies and newspapers. And it certainly raises serious questions which can be argued with conviction on both sides.

But we fail to see by what right, legal or moral, the State Police have been withholding from the public the facts about the fatal shooting of young Thomas Allen Steer Jr. of Monessen, including the names of the other youngsters involved.

The meagre information so far made available suggests that this tragedy was an accident. If so, since when have the names of juveniles involved in accidents become subject to police censorship? If this boy had been killed in an automobile, would the police be withholding the name of the driver? What difference is there in principle because the lethal instrument was a gun?

If there is evidence that the shooting was not entirely accidental, this is all the more reason why the public is entitled to full and prompt information. The custom concerning publication of juveniles' names has never applied in homicides.

Ordinarily the policies of the State Police are drawn intelligently, and this newspaper is pleased to cooperate with them. But in this case, the policy makes no sense.

A boy has been killed by a gun. Surely it is fundmental that the public know exactly what happened.

Merry-Go-Round—

Ike May Ask Truman for His Advice

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — The crisis over Sputnik may finally end the long grudge President Eisenhower has held against former President Harry Truman.

It's reported from members of the palace guard that in order to attain more national unity and Democratic support for his administration, he will call upon Truman and ex-Secretary of State Dean Acheson for advice.

Mr. Pearson

Eisenhower bitterness toward Truman was first evidenced when, as President-elect, he called at the White House on Jan. 20, 1953, to pick up retiring President Turman to drive to the Capitol for the inauguration. General Eisenhower did not get out of his car and go into the White House, as is customary, to greet the retiring President. Truman waited inside the White House, then, rather than create an incident, went to the front door and got in the car.

Later, when Eisenhower visited a cattle show in Kansas City, Truman tried to pay a courtesy call on him at the Hotel Muehlebach, but was told the President was too busy. Mr. Truman, who has a strong sense of respect for the office of President, no matter who occupies it, felt that he should pay his respects to Eisenhower when he arrived in Truman's home town, Kansas City.

Invited Hoover

On one occasion the former President told me: "One of the first things I did when I became President was to invite Herbert Hoover to the White House. I told him, 'Whenever you come to Washington, I want you to consider this your home, and the White House cars yours.'

"But these people," said Mr. Truman a little wistfully, "don't seem to like me."

I didn't realize at first whom he meant by "these people." Later, I realized he was referring to one man — Eisenhower.

Again last spring when the Greek government invited Truman to come to Greece on the 10th anniversary of the Truman Doctrine, the President refused to give him any official status, and Truman refused to go.

I talked to Truman last week in Los Angeles, and while this subject didn't come up, I have a hunch that if Ike makes the first move, as now reported from White House advisers, Harry will be delighted to bury the hatchet, roll up his sleeves, and work for his country.

April Warning

It was hushed up in a closed-door meeting, but way back last April Dr. Wernher Von Braun, top U. S. missile expert, warned members of a House Appropriation subcommittee that Russia was making important strides in rocket technology.

The committee was examining the Defense Department's 1958 request for guided missile research funds. Some congressmen were perplexed by Secretary Wilson's proposal to cut $22 million and questioned the man who first launched Hitler's V-2 rocket against England.

Von Braun was cautious not to speak too freely, but his concern about Russian progress became obvious as he was questioned.

He warned that the first country to develop an intercontinental missile would probably also be the first to the moon.

"The larger and larger ballistic missiles will provide the basic missile hardware to get more and more payload into an orbit in outer space or to the moon," he told Rep. Harry Sheppard (D., Cal.).

Von Braun also warned that the Russians had more than just good scientific research. It takes a competent "electronics industry capable of making such things as gyroscopes or good electric connectors and cables," he said.

"The fact that the Russians appear to have such a missile and also managed to build jet airliners and jet bombers seems to indicate they managed to build up this kind of industry."

Sheppard asked Von Braun if he thought the Russians were concentrating their resources on military and scientific advancement. "I am convinced this is the case," said Von Braun.

Congressman Errett Scrivner, the Kansas Republican poohpoohed Soviet advances.

"I do not see it. Perhaps my philosophy is entirely different from anybody else," he said. "I have yet to lose a night's sleep over the problem of a Russian bomber attack on this nation."

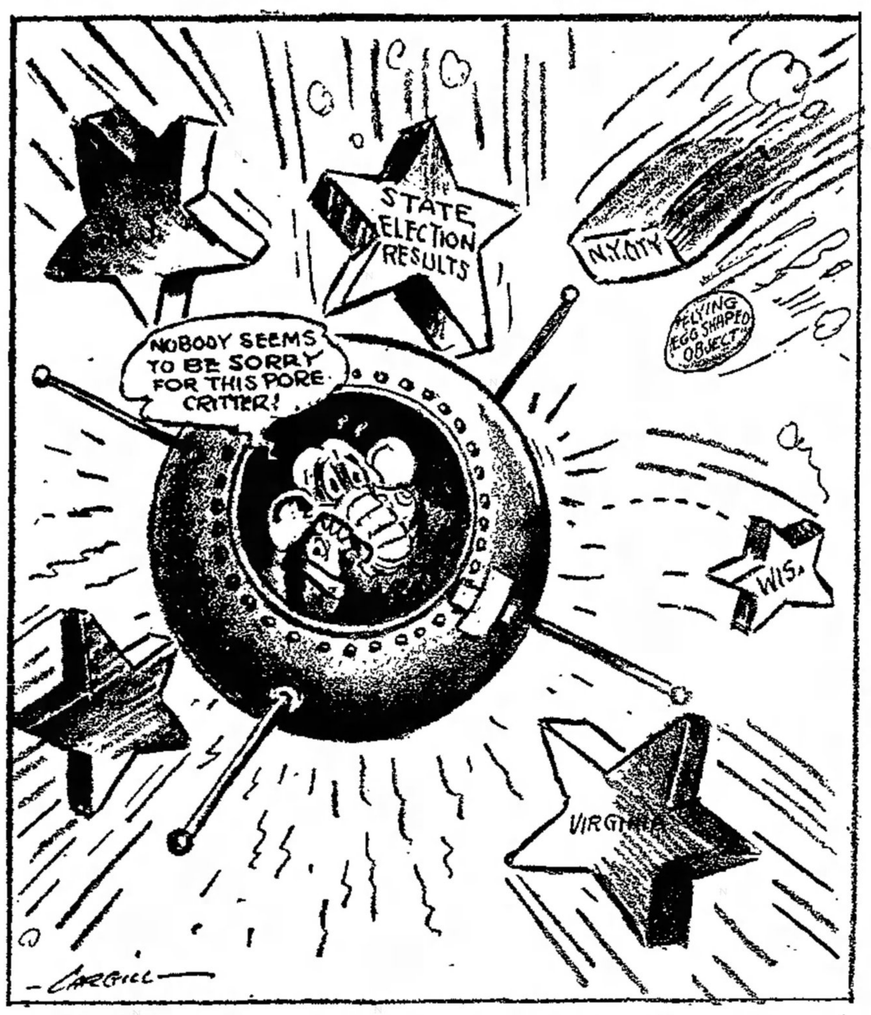
Lighting the Moon

"If our scientists told me they were going to fly to the moon I would ask just two questions. When? And why?" Scrivner said later.

"Throwing a few pounds of magnesium to the moon and igniting it on impact so you can observe the flash with astronimical telescopes — we could probably do it in five years, if somebody will foot the bill," replied Von Braun.

"To answer the question of why, I believe it comes down to the very fundamental question of what makes research tick," continued Von Braun. "I believe the fundamental stimulation of research is just plain curiosity, and it should stay that way."

Shower of Stars



From Washington—

Makings of a New Munich

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

The Eisenhower administration is most certainly not going to sit on its hands while the Soviet Union spurts into a foreboding lead in missile striking force.

The Air Force has sent an instrumented rocket some 4,000 miles into space and Secretary of Defense McElroy has rescinded a cut in military research which Charles Wilson had ordered. Things are beginning to happen.

Mr. Drummond

Things will need to happen because, as evidenced by Sputnik II, Moscow is not going to stand still. While we are trying to close the gap between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. in ICBMs the Russinas will be trying to widen it. Their capacity to do so is formidable.

It is plain that the Soviets know they have it within their reach to shift the whole world-wide military balance of power to their side. Official statements are coming out of Moscow which show that the Kremlin is well aware what such a shift would mean.

Obviously we are going to be doing a great deal to recover that lead. Whether the country is prepared to do enough to recover the lead depends, it seems to me, on whether we grasp what it means to allow the military balance of power to shift from ourselves to the Soviets.

I believe that it means these things — nothing less:

It means that the United States will be inviting exactly the same kind of diplomatic blackmail which Hitler practised on Britain and France in the late thirties — and practised successfully. It is already beginning.

It means that the free world will be bluntly and bludgeoningly confronted with a whole series of demands, a whole series of diplomatic extortions, which we will want to resist but which we will be unable to keep other nations from yielding to because we will not have the power to guarantee their protection.

May Lose Cold War

It means — if we permit the military balance of power to remain long on the Soviet side — the end of the cold war. That is, we will have lost it because we will not have the military shield behind which to wage it.

No one has put this point more forcefully than Eugene S. Duffield, a former newspaperman, one-time assistant to the late Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal and for several years a lecturer at the Air Force college, in a letter to the "Wall Street Journal." He says at one point:

"These events (these diplomatic extortions) will resemble what happened to Britain and France from Hitler's reoccupation of the Rhineland to Poland and to us from Japan's Shanghai incident to Pearl Harbor. Egypt - Syria could be the Austria; Turkey and the Middle East could be the Czechoslovakia; North Africa, the Balkans and perhaps West Germany the Poland.

"The Russians' postwar tactics indicate that they will prefer this approach at least at first. However there is sure to be a group in Russia who will urge the Pearl Harbor technique destroying the U.S. first and picking up the rest of the world like a pawn."

Another Munich?

When Britain and France, weary and weak from depression, conceded to Hitler the balance of power in the late thirties it meant just such a series of German political aggressions and then world war.

If we permit the Soviets to hold the military balance of power, will we not be drawing the dotted line for the political Munich which will precede World War III?

The Kremlin is already beginning its diplomacy of extortion to capitalize upon its new military power. It is informing the neutrals and warning the weaker nations of the West that the time is nearly at hand to "jump to the stronger side" — to the Soviet side.

If the United States permits the Soviets to remain stronger for very long this is certainly what will happen. This is why it is not just nice but vital that we do at once whatever is needed to redress the balance of power.

The Monongahela Valley Council of Jewish Juniors has undertaken as one of its projects during the coming year, the supplying of eye glasses to needy children whose parents are unable to purchase them. Glasses will be furnished to children in each of the valley towns where the club has membership.

Property owners on Myford alley, rear of Jean St., Belle Vernon, had on file today an injunction in Westmoreland County court of equity against the borough prohibiting the opening of the alley.

Ten Years Ago—

Tuesday, Nov. 11, 1947

Military and naval leaders solemnly reminded the nation in Armistice Day speeches today that preparedness is the price of peace. That theme was dominant as citizens in all walks of life paused in this third year of peace to pay homage to America's war dead.

It was reported that Premier Josef Stalin had been advised by his doctors to "leave his heavy burdens" to other officials. This was the alleged reason that Stalin was not at the big military parade in Red Square, Moscow last Friday when the 30th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution was celebrated. However, it was said Stalin still directs Russian foreign policy.

Bids will be received by City Council tomorrow calling for the sale and installation of approximately 250 meters in certain areas of Monessen's business district.

Upwards of 12,000 football fans are expected to witness the Charleroi-Monessen football game at 2:30 today. This will be the 32nd tilt between the Greyhounds and the Cougars, and will be staged at the Charleroi High Stadium.

The Woman's View—

Mrs. Belmont Works for Causes, Shuns Whirl

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UP)—Mrs. August Belmont owned the wherewithal to become a hostess with the mostes, had she wished.

Instead, one of the last of the grande dames of high society chose to devote her life to causes.

Gay Pauley

Now in her 70s, she still is busy with them, has found time to write her memoirs, but is far more interested in planning the future than reminiscing about the past.

"I never was a great party-giver, nor a great party-goer," she said in an interview in her spacious Fifth Avenue apartment overlooking Central Park.

Mrs. Belmont, a handsome gray-haired woman with light blue eyes and a lively sense of humor, was an actress of considerable note when a shipboard meeting led to marriage into the socially-prominent banking family. She was a contemporary of one of the Four-Hundred's most famous hostesses — the late Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.

Recalls Great Names

Her book, "The Fabric of Memory" (Farrar, Straus and Cudahy) is chock-full of names and personal sidelights on the famous of three generations — King George, Will Rogers, Richard Harding Davis, Caruso, George Bernard Shaw, to name a few. Shaw wrote "Major Barbara" especially for her, but she never played the role, much to his irritation.

Mrs. Belmont observed that the death of Mrs. Vanderbilt a few years ago marked the end of an era — the passing of the "old-fashioned society leader." But she seemed to have no regret.

"Society leaders. Where are they now?" she said. "Who owns a place big enough for 300 house guests? Now, entertaining is at a club or hotel. The circumstances don't provide for the same leadership."

Mrs. Belmont has been active since 1917 in the American Red Cross; in its nursing committee; helped establish what is now the community service society; was the first woman elected to the board of directors of the Metropolitan Opera Assn.; founded the Opera Guild in 1935 to further the cause of opera nationally, and has backed numerous other social and philanthropic projects.

Was Famed Actress

There were no big headlines about a "Cinderella bride" when in 1910 actress Eleanor Robson married August Belmont, a widower with three sons. "Oh, it was startling enough at that time for an actress to marry society," she said in the interview. "But we hadn't gone around talking about our engagement . . . although the immediate family knew of it for a long time and accepted me with all kindness. I closed in a play in Brooklyn one day. We married the next." There were no children of this marriage. Belmont died in 1924.

Today, she lives in comparative modesty, wintering at the apartment in New York and spending summers in "A little cottage with a giant view" in Northeast Harbor, Maine. She no longer is active in breeding and racing thoroughbreds—the Belmont track in New York is named for her husband's family.

"I christened Man O' War, the greatest of them all," she recalled, "I loved the horses just as dearly as my husband."

The Lighter Side—

Railroads Should Cater More to the Ladies

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP)—In a major breakthrough into new concepts of railroading, the Lionel people have developed a complete five-car electric model train made for girls only. That's crash thinking, boys.

Always, they explain, female tots have had to content themselves with playing with brother's model trains. But that's all behind us now. The new, girlish choo-choo features pastel colors such as a pink-frosting steam locomotive, robin's egg blue New York Central boxcar, lilac Lehigh Valley hopper, sky blue Pennsylvania illuminated caboose, and buttercup yellow M-K-T boxcar.

The model train people always have copied details from the big, real-life railroads, but this time they seem to have gone out on their own for the women's trade. And therein may lie the virus of an idea for the real railroads.

Trains For Ladies

In the recent disclosure that talks have been underway looking toward possible merger of the New York Central and the Pennsylvania railroads, there were estimates that each line was losing around 50 million dollars a year on its passenger service. Well, why not take the plunge and go right after the powerful distaff trade by whipping up special trains for ladies?

"Ladies' Limited! Now leaving on Track 29, for Paoli, Albany, Pittsburgh, and State Street shopping center in Chicago! Please accept our kind request for your presence aboard . . . Pennsy - Central, at home, after 6:14 p.m. standard time."

Under the Quigg plan, the Ladies' Special would consist of several boudoir cars—one with chintz drapes outside, another polka dot, another cozily wall-papered. Inside, there would be mirrors instead of windows, since the passengers would be much more interested in looking into them than in looking outside. The observation car would have picture mirrors.

The exterior architecture of the Pullmans would vary with each car—ranch house, Georgian, Cape Cod, cottage-small - by - a - waterfall . . . there would be brass knockers and chimes on the doors. Also, a fireplace in every car, attended, naturally, by a fireman—or firewoman.

Blue Serge Must Go

Those simply horrible blue serge suits on conductors would have to go. They could wear Bermuda shorts in summer and something gaudy like matador uniforms in winter. The tickets would be glamorized — heart - shaped and possibly in booklet form surrounded by advertisements, plus a couple of juicy heartthrob stories for berthtime reading.

Of course, there would be beauty salon cars, chiropodist cars, a cook-it-yourself diner, a bar car serving only pink lady and Alexander cocktails. The train butchers would hawk hors d'oeuvres instead of ham and cheese sandwiches.

When the train wheels whispered to the rails while crossing trestles, it wouldn't sound as if they were saying the traditional "Heinie Manush . . . Heinie Manush will play today." They'd say "Gussie Moran . . . Gussie Moran . . ." or maybe, "Elizabeth Second reigns supreme."

Political News Unbiased

To the Editor:

The Westmoreland County Democratic Committee takes this opportunity to thank your newspaper, and the members of your editorial and advertising staffs, for the very efficient, courteous, and unbiased manner in which you handled the press "news" releases of the Democratic party and its candidates for the general election campaign.

Inasmuch as newspapers are a well recognized media of public information, we certainly wanted to use all the papers of the county to the best advantage in covering the various party meetings and getting the candidates' remarks and philosophies before the voters.

We tried in most instances to keep all reports as newsworthy as possible — thereby having the maximum amount of reader interest, and we are happy that you treated them as such.

Although some of the candidates may have differed with your editorial policy at some times, I am certain that they all concur with my remarks on the "news" treatment given by your paper to all parties concerned.

Hoping that I have the pleasure of working with your paper and your staff members once again, and thanking you for your many considerations.

Dorothy Jean Gnip, Harry Tueche Wed

Solemnized on Saturday, Nov. 9, at 12 o'clock noon in the Most Holy Name of Jesus Church was the marriage of Dorothy Jean Gnip and Harry Beery Tueche, both of Monessen.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gnip Jr. of 528 Tenth St., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tueche Jr. of 1320 Rostraver St.

The Rev. Joseph Gadjosik heard the exchange of double ring vows and was the celebrant for the nuptial mass. White crash lined the aisle by which the bridal party entered the church, and white satin bows indicated the family pews.

Altar Decorated

Branched candelabra held tall lighted tapers to decorate the altar along with arrangements of white gladiolus, mums, ferns and palms.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of white imported Chantilly rosepoint lace worn over nylon tulle and tissue taffeta. It was styled with a fitted bodice, sabrina neckline and long fitted sleeves. The full skirt was worn over a hoop, and the gown was trimmed with Belgian crystal sequins. Imported silk illusion fashioned the veil that fell from a juliet cap trimmed with matching sequins. The bridal bouquet was fashioned of lily of the valley centered with an orchid. The only jewelry worn by the bride was a pair of sequin earrings to match the trim on the gown, and these were a gift of the bridegroom.

The bride's honor attendant was Eileen Persico, and the bridesmaids were Loretta Santori and Lorraine Santori. The maid of honor wore a gown of royal blue chiffon styled chapel length with a sabrina neckline and Grecian lined bodice. The full skirt was emphasized by the matching cummerbund. She wore matching shoes and headpiece and carried a colonial bouquet of white mums. The bridesmaids wore similar ensembles in dior blue and carried pink and pale rose bouquets.

James Tueche, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were John and Frank Ciccarelli.

The mother of the bride wore an ensemble of charcoal crepe with black accessories and a white carnation corsage. The mother of the bridegroom selected a saphire blue iridescent taffeta dress, matching accessories and a white carnation corsage.

Grandmothers Attend

The two grandmothers of the bridegroom, Mrs. W. O. Beery and Mrs. Harry Tueche Sr., were present wearing ensembles in shades of blended blue with white carnation corsages.

The bridal party formed a receiving line at the rear of the church. Nancy Bow and Albert Gnip 3rd passed out net wrapped rice from large white baskets tied with white bows.

Dinner for about 50 relatives was held at the Park Casino following the ceremony. Crystal candelabra held the tall tapers and white fuji mums were also used in the appointments. A reception for the families followed at the Gnip home. Guests attended from Weirton, W. Va., Aliquippa, Ohio and other area towns.

At 6 o'clock the couple left for New York City. The bride's traveling ensemble was a brown suit with matching hat and brief fur jacket. She wore alligator accessories and a white orchid corsage. They will reside in their newly furnished apartment at 692 McKee Ave.

"HAIR SHAPING IS AN ARTIST'S PEROGATIVE"

By James V. Bonafed

Hair Shaping Is an Artist's Perogative

We know cutting and shaping is a true art. It's such an important part of our profession, we go back to special classes, year after year, so that we can apply the most modern methods to your own tresses. Maybe you've never thought of it this way—but every permanent wave, every flattering new hair style owes its lasting beauty to the hair shaping which precedes it.

**

Take a Look at a Teen-Ager

Observe some of the pre-teen girls you know . . . those who wear their locks in a stiff, flowing, seldom-trimmed mane. You'll note that "stiffness" in the hair. Sides seldom hold a definite wave. Even with pins, ribbons and barettes, the hair finds it hard to keep an orderly appearance. This is because this young hair hasn't been "shaped" . . . skillfully tapered and blended, so that waves will fall exactly where they're wanted.

**

We'll Coax Careful Lines into Being

So gently (to the observer) that even if you wish a rather casual look, you can depend on the waves to fall into place that way. We'll do it first with expert shaping, then with the kind of permanent wave that might have been formulated just for you . . . so right is every drop of lotion for your hair condition, and the ultimate amount of curl you wish your "public" to see. (Tell them it's natural if you like. They'll believe you!)

**

Long Hair . . . with Care

Yes, of course . . . if you simply prefer long hair—or longer than most—you may wear it that way. But one of the most surprising facts is this: You may require more frequent shaping and trimming than your short-haired sister! Most certainly, if you are past 25, your long hair must have professional care. Only the hairdresser skilled in the art of the scissors and the shaper can give you the graceful contours that will make your hair easy to manage between salon visits!

Speaking of salon visits . . . isn't it time we discussed you in person? Come in soon!

Bellmar Gridders Show Improvement

Bellmar High School's grid team has certainly shown improvement since the beginning of the season when the Hurricanes failed to live up their pre-season ratings . . . After a slow start which saw them appear slightly disorganized, the 'Canes seem to have found their bearings since the German Township defeat and have managed to win two and drop two tough ones to California and South Union, games in which breaks could have sent the score the other way . . . Coach Bap Manzini has the Jointers clicking on all cylinders now and they have a good chance to post a winning card, getting into high gear just as the season closes.

* * *

We got a kick out of an article appearing in a metropolitan newspaper last week and we think you will also . . . A certain writer was commenting that Oklahoma Sooners should always be picked over an opponent and listed eight good reasons something like this — 1. Bud Wilkinson. 2. The first team. 3. The second team. 4. The third team. 5. The fourth team 6. Gomer Jones, top assistant. 7. They're the Yankees of college football. 8. And everybody knows the Yankees never lose the "big" ones . . . How about that? . . . We don't want to take a thing away from a wonderful grid team like Oklahoma but we will always wonder if the Sooners could do as well against a steady diet of top-notch teams instead of the half-easy, half-rough schedule they play.

Greyhound Band Rates Plaudits

Here's a belated pat on the back for the Monessen High School's band in the last couple of games, especially the Charleroi encounter where the Cougar band invariably rates praises . . . The music of the locals is among the snappiest we've heard from any band this season and we personally think the Charleroi band topped the local musicians only because of the lighting effect used in the final number although we mean in no way to take anything away from a fine CHS ensemble . . . Speaking of the Monessen-Charleroi game, both Coach Rab Currie of the Cougars and Armand Niccolai of the 'Hounds agreed that the enthusiasm for the game was below par on both squads and in both schools . . . Must be the on-again-off-again season which helped dull interest.

* * *

Despite the adverse weather conditions that aws an impressive tribute paid the parents of Monessen High gridders at the Duquesne game Friday night . . . Local school officials deserve credit for the fine manner in which they hurriedly arranged the "night" when the flu-fouled schedule prevented planning in advance . . . Rostraver Junior High School officials are a little miffed at the fact that Fallowfield Township couldn't adjust its grid schedule in order to play the Little Leps and complete the home card for Rostraver's Juniors . . . It is a shame, for the lads of Coach Ed Hogan have the title regardless but didn't want it tainted by the fact that maybe the Falcons could have beaten them (which was doubtful considering the season records).

Dabiero Donora's Second Top Scorer

Angie Dabiero, fleet Donora halfback, who will perform against the Greyhounds next Friday night at Donora, now rates as the second highest scorer in Donora High history with 164 points, just 4 behind the all-time high mark scored by Dan Towler, who has 168, including the championship game in 1945 . . . Dabiero scored 109 of his total last year, 49 this season . . . Speaking of scorers, a rundown of the Steel Valley Conference records show why Clairton is away out in front with three backs among the four top scorers in the conference, one with over 60 points and two with over 50 points each plus (farther down the list) three players who have scored over 18 points each as the Bears racked up an astounding total of 287, so far, to the foes' 65.

Today's Sports Parade—

Army Sophomore May Smash Davis' Mark

By OSCAR FRALEY

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UP)—Bob Anderson, a husky choir singer who dotes on baseball, was 110 yards short of Army football history today.

Anderson is the workhorse halfback of the Cadet grid team who leads the nation's touchdown scorers this season with a total of 13. But his specialty is eating up yardage in huge chunks and it's the main reason why Army has lost only one game this year.

It's an ability which menaces the Army ground-gaining record established by the immortal Glenn Davis of Davis-Blanchard fame during the war years when the Cadets were the scourge of the college gridiron.

Davis' Record in Danger

Anderson seems a cinch to smash the Davis record in this, his first year of varsity football. For Rambling Rob is only a yearling (sophomore) and as such still is a growing boy.

But apparently he isn't going to wait until he grows up. For he's that mere 110 yards away from the Davis record with two games to go.

Davis, it can be said, ran against a group of sub-par opponents during the war years when college boys were really boys. Still, his 930 yards gained in 82 carries during 1945 was some pumpkins even against Vassar.

You can't say that Army plays the toughest schedule in the world even today. It is a spotty one with the few tough games well scattered. Yet, even so, every one of these clubs lays for the Cadets and proof of the tapioca is the way thrice-beaten Utah barely bowed, 39 to 33, Saturday.

One-Man Show

Still, it was another one-man show from the Army side of the ledger as Anderson cracked to three touchdowns — one on a 54-yard sprint — and pitched a fourth. It was his greatest day as he rolled up 214 yards for a total of 820 yards in seven games and moved to within easy striking distance of the Davis record.

He's big for a halfback, this 19-year-old who was born in Elizabeth, N.J., packing 200 pounds on a six foot, two inch frame. This lets him drive inside but he also can run with the elusiveness of a pony back and once he gets beyond the secondary there's no catching him.

One of the strange facets of the Anderson story is that he was a sickly youngster who almost never got to West Point. A severe nasal condition caused his family to move to the South when he was six years old and at Cocoa he was one of the finest athletes ever turned out in Florida.

Young Bob won 15 letters in football, baseball, basketball and track and 20 schools were after him when he earned high school All-America honors. Bob wanted to go to West Point but the family thought it was a matter of money to get in and he had about given up the idea when Army athletic authorities cleared up that little misunderstanding.

Niccolai Orders Tackling Practice

MHS Mentor Cites Atrocious Play on Defense Friday

Tackling drills were the order of the day for Monessen High School's gridders this week as the Greyhounds prepped for arch-rival Donora.

"Usually, this late in the season, you don't have to devote so much time to tackling drills but after the atrocious tackling I saw at the Duquesne game here Friday night, I'm ordering such drills for the rest of the week."

Apparently very disturbed over the poor showing of the locals defensively, Niccolai ordered the team to buckle down for the Donora game "or else."

Several times during the Duquesne clash, Greyhound tacklers had Little Dukes' backs apparently thrown for losses only to "fall off" the ball-carrier and allow the carrier to gain anywhere from 10 to 20 more yards.

No Serious Injuries

There were apparently no serious injuries to 'Hound gridders following the Duquesne tussle, so the locals should be in good physical condition to meet the improved Dragons.

Donora, after a slow start, has won five straight games, the latest being an impressive 19-0 win over Washington.

Pacing the Donora attack as expected are Angie Dabiero and Tom Urbanik speedy halfback and bone-crushing fullback respectively.

In addition the Dragons have a top-notch quarterback in Davey Russell.

Defensively, Donora is seemingly finding the answers as the past few games will attest.

This will be the last regularly-schedule game on the Monessen schedule but an announcement on postponements should be forthcoming soon.

ML All-Star Tilt Tomorrow

Kickoff Set for 7:30 p. m.

Monessen's Midget League All-Stars and the 1957 champion Jefferson team of the local league today anxiously looked forward to tomorrow night's All-Star tilt at Memorial Stadium. Game time is set for 7:45 o'clock.

Carmen DeMarco's Jeffersons, unbeaten in league competition through a six-game schedule, will be out to prove that Eric Crabtree and Company can ramble against the toughest of competition.

Tough competition is exactly what Coach Dale Simpson, of Lincoln and his aides Bucky Lutes of Vocational and Mooney Kachmarik of Frank-Lin, have in mind for the champs.

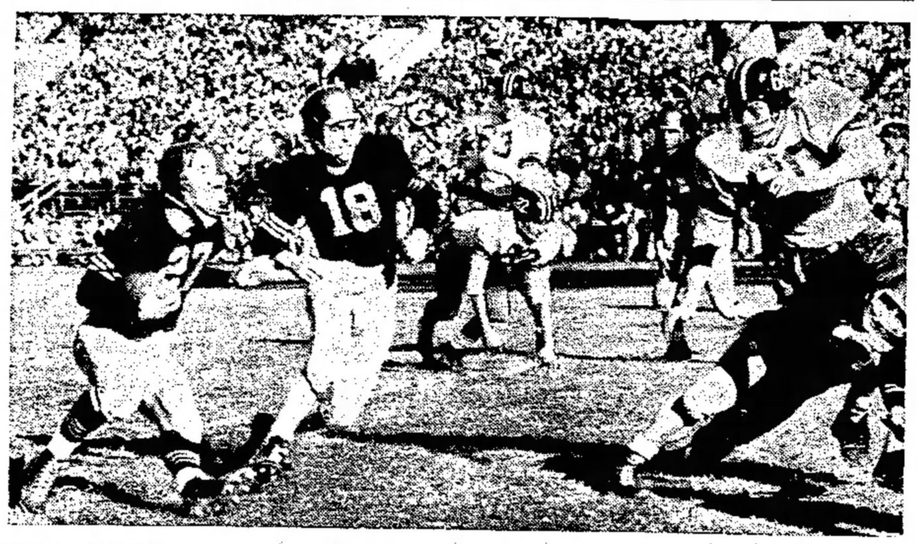
Top League Players

Twenty-four top players in the league chosen by the coaches of the three other teams in the league (other than the league-champs) will face the Jeffersons.

Nine players from the second-place Lincoln team, eight from Frank-Lin and seven from Vocational make up the All-Star squad.

The "Stars" and Jeffersons have been drilling daily for the big game which is expected to be witnessed by a capacity crowd.

Starting lineups will be announced tomorrow by both coaches.



NAVY TIES DUKE, 6-to-6 — Ned Oldham (27), Navy halfback, takes a handoff from Tom Forrestal (18) and picks up eight yards in the first quarter of their game with Duke at Baltimore, Md. Bowl-hungry Navy and Duke fought to a 6-to-6 tie as Bob Reifsnyder of the Middies narrowly missed a field goal with 26 seconds to play.

Lions to Handle All-Star 'Duties'

The Monessen Lions Club will handle the many duties assigned organizations at Midget League tilts, at tomorrow night's All-Star game.

A different organization (or two) assumes the duties each game.

Waynesburg Drops 20-14 Decision To W. Va. Tech

A last quarter touchdown by West Virginia Tech's Paul McMellon sewed up a win over Waynesburg College Saturday night at Montgomery, W. Va., 20-14.

The lead changed hands several times during the game.

After a scoreless first period, Tech's quarterback, Johnson, scored from the five yard line. The conversion attempt was no good. Waynesburg scored late for a 7-6 lead on the extra point kick but West Virginia Tech scored again.

In the third quarter, Waynesburg regained the helm position when a pass from the Jacket quarterback, Art Walker, to end Ed Galaski bounced into Otto Minehart's hands. Minehart then crossed the line for a Jacket TD. Anderson converted, making the score 14 to 13, in favor of the Jackets.

In the last quarter, Tech made big yardage gains as Waynesburg's line seemed to weaken. The lead changed hands for the last time when Tech's Paul McMellon scored from 10 yards out. The kick was good, making the score 20 to 14, the Jackets failed to take the lead again.

The encounter gives Waynesburg a 3-2-1 record and Tech a 4-3 record. Waynesburg's only other loss was to the Titans of Westminster.

CSTC Clobbers West Liberty

California Teachers College poured on the steam and roared to a 46-6 rout of West Liberty at California Saturday.

Held scoreless in the first period, California exploded with 20 points in the second and 19 in the fourth, primarily on a crushing ground attack that netted 340 yards.

California's only overhead touchdown came on a play covering 71 yards with Dinardo pitching to Jim Mendola of Monongahela.

The victory was the second in six outings for Ted Nemeth's Vulcans, who end their season next Saturday against unbeaten West Chester Teachers.

Brownsville Battles Monongahela Today

Brownsville High's gridders will try the almost impossible this week (starting this afternoon) when they attempt to play three football games in ten days.

Friday night they dropped a 12-0 decision to Uniontown and next Friday the Brownies battle Connellsville in a regularly scheduled tilt.

This afternoon the Brownsville eleven will battle Monongahela in a 1 o'clock contest at Brownie Stadium, an unusual time for Mon Valley Conference teams.

The game today will be a feature of the Veterans Day activities at Brownsville.

Seek Third Win

Coach Alex Barantovich will be looking for his third win of the season for the Brownies, having topped Munhall and Redstone, beaten by Donora and Uniontown in a schedule abbreviated almost to nothing by the flu epidemic.

Monongahela owns a win over Redstone but has dropped decisions to Monessen, Donora and Charleroi in Big Five competition.

Another feature of today's game will be the crowning of Brownsville High's gridiron queen.

World of Sports Pauses to Honor Hero Athletes

By UNITED PRESS

The world of sports paused once again on Veterans Day today to remember America's athletes who gave their lives in recent wars.

Taking "time out" from the events of the current season, sportsmen recalled men whose names once were listed as champions and now are ranked forever on the rolls of the honored dead.

The names come from every field of sports:

Tommy Hitchcock, the world's top polo player who died in a fighter plane crash; All-American football player Nile Kinnick of Iowa, whose plane crashed in the Caribbean; "world's fastest human" Charley Paddock, who died in a Marine Corps landing; ski-jumping record holder Torger Tokle, who died with U.S. ski troops in Italy; Waddy Young, college and pro football star who was lost in the first B-29 raid on Tokyo;

And Tommy Howie, the one-time star halfback at the Citadel whose death brought him fame as the "Major of St. Lo" when his victorious troops carried his body into that captured French town.

And Army football captain John Trent, who died in Korea; former National Tennis champion Joe Hunt; Notre Dame football star Jack Chevigny; Al Biozis, Georgetown's star shot-putter who became a pro football star, too; Foy Draper, Southern California's national sprint champion; Billy Fisk, 1936 Olympic bobsled champion; hurdles champions Elmer Gedeon of Michigan and George Gilson of Holy Cross; Olympic equestrian Harry Chamerlain; pitcher Forrest Brewer of the Washington Senators; and Billy Southworth, Jr., ballplayer and son of a major-leaguer.

And all the others.

They are remembered again.

Only Three State College Teams Stay Unbeaten

By UNITED PRESS

Only three Pennsylvania college football teams remained unbeaten and untied today after Lehigh and National Aggies suffered their first defeats of the season in Saturday's games.

West Chester scored its 13th straight victory, eight this year, when it came from behind with two second period touchdowns to defeat stubborn Bloomsburg, 13-7.

Lock Haven Teachers scored their tenth straight by knocking Lycoming from the unbeaten ranks 21-7. It was Lock Haven's seventh win this year. Lycoming with four victories had been tied once.

Juniata, which has lost only one game in the past five years, stretched their string to 10, five this year, with a 14-0 win over PMC as the Bernier twins, Jim and Bill, scored the touchdowns.

Pitt was edged by West Virginia, 7-6, with Whitey Nikanik's conversion providing the upset margin. Bill McClure's 44 yard punt return to the Pitt six set up the Mountaineers' touchdown and the Panthers scored on a 51 yard pass play from Ivan Toncic to Art Gob. But Toncic missed the point try.

Germans to Try Football League For Frauleins

FRANKFURT (UP)— A group of hardy frauleins seem to have kicked off(women's football on the road to success in Western Germany.

And they are determined to make it an international sport as well. Following a series of experimental international games between the Germans and all-star teams from Austria, England and Holland, a West German football leader, former soccer star Josef Floritz, announced he will try to set up an international women's soccer federation.

The German football girls have come a long way in a country where many males believe that women's place is with "kinder, kirche und kuche" (children, church and kitchen). Despite the all-out opposition of the men's football association, an estimated 800 frauleins now regularly play soccer.

They plan to start a regular league championship soon, and even their most outspoken foes grudgingly admit that women's soccer.

Johnston displayed his best shooting eye Sunday night in scoring 34 points at Cincinnati lead the Warriors to a 106-101 victory over the Cincinnati Royals. He sank 10-for-10 on free throws and 12-of-20 on field goal attempts

This game was the only action in the league Sunday.

Brown Reverses Jinx on Parker; Cleveland Tops Steelers by 24-0

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Cleveland Coach Paul Brown has apparently reversed a jinx which Pittsburgh Steeler Coach Buddy Parker held over him while coaching the Detroit Lions.

The Browns completed a sweep of a home-and-home series by scoring in every period Sunday to defeat the Steelers, 24-0. It marked the second time since Parker came to Pittsburgh from Detroit, that Cleveland has won.

Previously, Parker had whipped Cleveland in in 10 out of 12 games, with one ending in a tie and Brown only winning once.

The loss dropped Pittsburgh into third place in the National Football League's Eastern Division, while the Browns strengthened their hold on first place.

Quarterback Tommy O'Connell threw two scoring passes, Don Paul ran 89 yards with a fumble for a touchdown, and Lou Groza kicked a field goal and converted twice to give Cleveland its victory.

Statistically, the Steelers had a slight edge rolling up 18 first downs to 11 for the Browns. Earl Morrall completed 15 out of 33 passes and sub Jack Kempt two out of four for 186 yards—18 better than the Browns.

Cleveland had the edge rushing piling up 123 yards to Pittsburgh's 90. Halfback Billy Wells contributed all but four yards of the Steelers' total.

The Steelers will be idle until Nov. 24 when they meet the Green Bay Packers at Forbes Field.

Unbeaten College Teams Now at 23

NEW YORK (UP)— Eleven college football teams suffered their first loss of the season during the weekend, cutting the ranks of the nation's perfect record teams to 23, four of whom have completed their schedule.

The list is topped by Texas A&M, Oklahoma, Auburn and Tempe (Ariz.) State among the major teams. The Aggies have a clean slate after eight games, while the other three have won all seven starts.

St. Norbert's (Wis.), Idaho State, Fairmont (W.Va.) and Jamestown (N.D.) have completed their season's work with Jamestown sporting the enviable record of having played through six games without being scored on Pittsburg (Kan.) tops the list with nine wins. Eastern New Mexico fell from the ranks by playing a 14-14 tie with Southwest Oklahoma after winning eight in a row.

Giants Keep on Browns' Heels in NFL Race

By EARL WRIGHT

The Cleveland Browns, gulping energy pills while starving the opposition, and the San Francisco Forty-Niners, beaten before the National Football League's biggest crowd, clung to one-game division leads in the wake of Sunday's action.

The Browns, who have been taking thousands of special pills to build up their strength, shut out the Pittsburgh Steelers, 24-0, to retain their Eastern lead over the New York Giants. New York kept on Cleveland's heels by downing the Chicago Cardinals, 27-14.

The Detroit Lions and Baltimore Colts, tied for second behind San Francisco, cut the gap to one game by whipping Eastern Division opponents. Bobby Layne threw three touchdown passes to pace Detroit to a 27-16 triumph over the Philadelphia Eagles and Johnny Unitas dashed three yards in the last minute to give Baltimore a 21-17 victory over the Washington Redskins.

Goal in Last Minute

Rick Casares bolted nine yards with a minute remaining to give the Chicago Bears a 21-14 victory over the Green Bay Packers in the other game.

Cleveland now boasts the league's best record, 6-1. New York has a 5-2 mark. Pittsburgh, which invaded Cleveland tied with New York and with a chance to tie for the Eastern lead, fell two games behind the Browns. San Francisco stands at 5-2, while Detroit and Baltimore have 4-3 records.

Norm Van Brocklin, booed so often in the Coliseum, sent his biggest single audience home happy. He threw scoring passes of 15 and 50 yards to Bob Boyd while completing 14 of 23 for 224 yards to spark the Ram offense.

Cleveland scored touchdowns on Tommy O'Connell's heaves of 49 yards to Ray Renfro and 13 to Preston Carpenter plus Don Paul's 89-yard dash with a Billy Wells fumble.

Frank Gifford, bedded Saturday with a flu attack, played his best game of the season for New York, defending league and Eastern Division champion. Gifford ran 24 yards for the team's last touchdown after his running and receiving helped set up Charley Conerly's 32-yard scoring pass to Bob Schnelker and 13-yarder to Kyle Rote plus two 17-yard Ben Agajanian field goals. Ollie Matson plunged a yard and ran 57 for the Cardinal touchdowns at Yankee Stadium.

Oklahoma Nails Down Berth in Orange Bowl

By JOHN GRIFFIN

Three of post-season football's choicest plums — both berths in the Rose Bowl and the host bid to the Cotton Bowl — may be picked next Saturday but the first bowl bid already has gone to Oklahoma.

The Big Eight championship and the Orange Bowl berth that goes with it both were nailed down by Oklahoma on Saturday with its 39-14 romp over Missouri — the Sooners' 47th straight win in a record streak and 64th straight league victory.

Ohio State, a 20-7 victor over Purdue, can nail down the Big Ten title by beating Iowa this week for one Rose Bowl spot and the other will go to Oregon if it can whip Southern California.

Texas A&M, the nation's No. 1 team with a 19-6 win over Southern Methodist on Saturday night, can officially clinch the Southwest Conference crown and the host bid to the Cotton Bowl by beating Rice. Right now the figuring is that the Aggies' New Year's Day foe might be the winner of the Army-Navy game on Nov. 30—or, if neither service school is willing, Mississippi and Tennessee might be in the picture.

Here's the current view of the other big bowl games:

Sugar — Ineligibility of Auburn, the Southeastern Conference leader, and the fact Army wouldn't accept because of racial laws leaves this only cloudy but Mississippi, Tennessee, and Mississippi State are believed in contention.

Orange — Duke, which tied Navy, 6-6, on Saturday, appears most likely foe for Oklahoma.

Gator — West Virginia's 7-6 upset of Pittsburgh makes the Mountaineers a strong possibility for one berth with the other wide open.

Here's the situation now in the major conference races:

Big Ten — Ohio State on top with a 5-0-0 record to Iowa's 4-0-1 with their meeting this week the decider; Pacific Coast — Oregon still leads with 5-1-0 despite 13-6 loss to Washington and needs to win only one of two remaining to clinch bowl berth; Southeastern—Auburn, 5-0-0, has two left against weaker opponents than has Mississippi, 4-0-0; Atlantic Coast—Duke 4-0-1 with two left, North Carolina St. 4-0-1 with one league game left; Southern — VMI, 4-0-0, has two left and West Virginia, 3-0-0, only one; Southwest—Texas A&M, 4-0-0, can clinch this week; Skyline — Utah St., 4-1-0- leads Brigham Young, 3-1-1, with one each left; Ivy — Princeton, 5-0-0, and Dartmouth, 4-0-1, seem headed for showdown on Nov. 23.

Duke's tie with eighth-ranked Navy and 10th-ranked Oregon's loss to Washington were among the few surprises on a weekend that saw the nation's top seven teams all win. Perhaps the top upset of the day was North Carolina State's 7-6 loss to five-times-beaten William & Mary.

The Texas Aggies broke a 6-6 tie to beat SMU; third-ranked Auburn had to come from behind a 7-0 score to beat Mississippi State, 15-7; fourth-ranked Michigan State crushed Notre Dame, 34-6; fifth-ranked Iowa beat Minnesota, 44-20; Army won over Utah 39-33 and Illinois scored a 20-19 upset over Michigan.

Disappointed Pitt Looks to Lions to Regain Prestige

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A disappointed University of Pittsburgh football team looked forward today to its annual clash with Penn State as a means of regaining some of its lost prestige.

Penn State now appears to be the class of the district Big Three. The Lions have a 5-2 record and a lopsided victory over the West Virginia Mountaineers, who downed Pitt, 7-6, Saturday.

A victory over Pitt Nov. 23 would assure the Lions of the round robin championship. But the Panthers will go all out to win, because a victory over State would add some luster to their disappointing 3-5 record.

Coach Johnny Michelosen will have two weeks to get his team into condition for the Pitt Stadium clash with the Lions. Three key players, halfback Joe Scisly, guard Ed Michaels and tackle Jim McCusker who sat out the West Virginia game, should be ready for State.

Center Charley Brueckman, who has a shoulder separation, may be out for the game.

Only One American

NEW YORK (UP) — Fred Bonnet of New York is the only native American on the City College of New York soccer team which has 10 nationalities on the squad.

Elizabeth-Forward Upsets California

Elizabeth-Forward High School surprised California by stopping the rugged Trojans, 13-6 at Elizabeth Saturday, the winners garnering all their points in the first quarter.

Ken Bruni, Elizabeth reserve, passed 20 yards to Frank Bernadowski, who sprinted 47 yards to score. Regis Urbanovich ran for the extra point.

Later, Urbanovich raced 33 yards to score. California's only touchdown was made by Irwin from the one-yard line in the fourth quarter.

BOSTON (UP) — Eight-year-old Aurora Way, who has spent most of her life in Red China, today was getting acquainted with the parents she had not seen in more than seven years.

"Remember me? I'm your mother," said Mrs. John Way of Boston as the little dark-haired child stepped from a TWA Airliner early Sunday. She had flown here from Hong Kong where she was concealed for some time from Red police.

Aurora's 11-year-old brother, Douglas, advanced shyly, hugged his sister and gave her a toy poodle. Her father, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, carried her from the airfield.

Aurora was only six months old when her parents left China to visit the U.S. in 1949. She was too sick to travel and stayed behind with her grandmother.

Twenty days later the Reds captured Shanghai and Communist officials refused to let the child emigrate to the United States.

Last winter she was smuggled to Hong Kong from Shanghai. She could go no farther because of United States immigration regulations.

Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.) intervened on behalf of the Ways and her emigration was arranged. The World Council of Churches booked passage for the youngster.

Aurora was unable to speak a word of English as she stepped off the plane at Logan Airport into a biting northwest wind. But she said in Chinese that she recognized her mother.

Marine Corps Offers Options

The U.S. Marine Corps is currently offering young men three options upon enlistment, according to an announcement today by Sgt. Kenneth Hicks of the McKeesport recruiting station.

One option allows the young man 120 days before reporting for training. Another program permits the new Marine to enlist directly into aviation after the completion of recruit and advanced training.

The third option is the "buddy program." Under this plan a total of five young men may enlist together, train together and receive their leaves together.

Additional information may be secured from the Marine recruiting station at the Post Office in

$10,000 Tractor Is South Pole Marker

MCMURDO SOUND, Antarctica (UP)— A U.S.-built $10,000 tractor became a permanent marker at the South Pole today. The seven-ton tractor slipped from its parachute straps during an air drop Sunday and buried itself 20 feet under the hard crusted snow within 100 feet of the U.S. flag that marks the pole proper. Navy Lt. John Tuck of Auburn, Mass., commander of the U.S. pole station, said there was no hope of geting it out. A geyser of snow, hurled 150 feet high by the impact, bowled over station meteorologist Edwin C. Flowers of Kensington, Md., and knocked out one of his front teeth.

Syrian Students Parade

By UNITED PRESS

Four hundred Syrian students demonstrated today in the streets of Damascus against King Hussein of Jordan. Western diplomats feared new attempts to overthrow Hussein or even to assassinate him.

Jerusalem dispatches said the anti-Hussein forces were gaining strength in Jordan.

The students were described as Palestinian refugees who cried "Hussein must go" and "Hussein our traitor" as they paraded through the Damascus streets with their schoolbooks and satchels.

There was no violence during the 20-minute demonstration, but Western observers noted it followed anti-Hussein broadcasts by both Syria and Egypt.

Cairo Accuses Hussein

If there were Jordanians who would like to kill the young king, Cairo Radio constantly egged them on. It has accused the monarch of seeking peace with Israel, an act the 800,000 Palestinians in Jordan would regard as outright betrayal.

Western diplomatic sources said the crisis in Jordan itself threatened Middle Eastern peace. But new tensions were arising between other Mideast nations and the Syrian-Turkish conflict still was not a dead issue.

Chief target of the opponents is Foreign Minister Samir Rifai, the strong man behind Jordan's suppression of anti-government forces —which consist of both pro-Syria and pro-Egyptian elements.

Reconciliation Necessary

One diplomatic source in a Mideast dispatch reaching Nicosia, Cyprus, said Hussein would have to reconcile his forces with the leftist and Palestinian elements if he is to survive.

The main fear inside the palace was said to be an attempted assassination. Hussein's grandfather King Abdullah was assassinated when he tried to make peace with Israel, and the Cairo Radio has pointed this out almost daily while accusing Hussein of the same actions.

Jordan and Israel have denied reports they were negotiating on the Palestine refugee question; Jordan radio broadcasts have accused Egypt and Syria of being Communist stooges.

Truman Speaks In West Virginia To Honor Vets

WELCH, W. Va. (UP)—Former President Harry S. Truman, who last spoke here when the nation was on the brink of war, returned today to help this southern West Virginia coal town honor its fallen heroes.

Truman will be principal speaker at a Veterans Day observance in this community of 6,500 persons.

The former President, while a U. S. Senator from Missouri spoke here at an Armistice Day celebration Nov. 11, 1941 — the final days before the United States entered World War II.

At a brief stopover at Columbus, Ohio, Sunday night, Truman criticized the Eisenhower administration for its handling of the satellite program.

The United States, he told newsmen, could "easily" outdistance the Soviet Union "if we have anybody with nerve to do it." He compared the satellite program with the World War II race to develop the atomic bomb.

"Luckily, we had President Roosevelt who saw to it that this country came out ahead," he declared.

Truman dismissed recent magazine articles which criticized his administration's handling of the missile program. He called them little more than an "alibi for Ike."

"We immediately went to work," he said when the Germans began developing rockets during World War II. "It was organized so the various armed services wouldn't be cutting each other's throats."

P&LE Net Income Reports Are Made

The Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad Co. today reported an estimated net income for October of $968,996 or $1.12 per share as compared to $1,018,566 or $1.18 per share for the same month last year.

For the first ten months of 1957, the estimated net income is reported at $8,052,996 or $9.32 earnings per share. This is compared with $7,461,978 or $8.64 per share for the same period last year.

Food Draft

TOKYO (UP)— Communist China announced plans today to draft millions of peasants to build irrigation projects in order to increase production for the nation's grain-hungry masses. The announcement came on the heels of reports received in Tokyo which indicate that food shortages and growing peasant dissatisfaction have caused minor revolts against the Communist regime.

Holland, Belgium Call For Changes in NATO

PARIS (UP)—Two small NATO members called today for a sweeping revision of the Anglo-American concept of nuclear bomb deterrents to Russian expansion.

The demand came in a report prepared by representatives of Holland and Belgium, for presentation today to the Military Committee of the Assembly of Parliamentarians from the 15 member nations.

The committee opened a week-long meeting today preparatory to the December conference of the chiefs of state of the NATO members.

Sources said the report:

—Labeled as "outdated" NATO's reliance on the nuclear deterrent.

—Charged NATO's ground forces are in danger of "disintegration."

—Urged the transfer of the "standing group"—the leading military authority—from Washington to Paris.

—Asserted current Western defense set up has been thrown off balance by the Soviet infiltration of the Middle East.

The special study was prepared by Arthur Gilson of Belgium and Lt. Gen. Rudolph H. Calmeyer of Holland. It underlined the concern of the smaller European nations which make up the majority of NATO's membership that "the Soviet threat cannot be met simply by atomic bombs," sources said.

It charged that NATO military strength is in danger of "increasing disintegration" because of a lack of coordinated political and military direction.

The report called for a boost in NATO strength to a minimum of 30 divisions armed with atomic tactical weapons plus a comparable air arm.

Informed sources said the report was highly critical of the NATO science program, asserting it had led "to duplication, wastage of money and a downgrading of certain member countries, which weakens mutual confidence."

Homework Is Even Decreed

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Soviet Union, one of the most regimented countries in the world, has even set ceilings on the amount of homework to be assigned students.

The U.S. Office of Education said in a report on Soviet education that a special decree was issued in 1952 setting maximum homework limits.

The decree permitted one hour of homework nightly in the first grade, two hours in the third grade and up to four hours in the third grade and up to four hours in grades eight through ten.

Gold Coast Wonder Boy Troubled

By HAROLD GUARD

LONDON (UP)—Kwame Nkrumah, political wonder boy of the Gold Coast, finds himself today faced with the old problem of the British colonial government—how to prove who is boss in the nine-month-old independent West African state of Ghana where he is prime minister.

Since Ghana became the Commonwealth's newest dominion in March of this year, Nkrumah has been charged by his critics of leading the country into dictatorship. His name has been linked with Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin.

Nkrumah lost no time when his parliament first assembled in taking measures to deal with troublesome elements.

He pushed through a bill legalizing a deportation act that could quickly rid the country of what Nkrumah judged to be troublemakers.

Within weeks he had deported two Moslem leaders, the editor of an opposition newspaper and a British journalist.

The reading of his bill brought cheers of "freedom" from his supporters and jeers of "heil Hitler" from his opponents.

Unifies Opposition

One important consequence of his alleged high-handed action has been the unification of his political opponents' parties.

Last week six of them joined together in a single "United Party" which was formally inaugurated in Accra.

Joe Appiah, who married Peggy Cripps, daughter of the late Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's Socialist "austerity chancellor," was principal speaker.

He charged that the people of Ghana had put the clock back 100 years by putting Nkrumah in power.

While this dangerous opposition was simmering, Nkrumah pressed on with his measures to wreck the barriers to his authority in Ghana.

He withdrew his recognition of Asantehene Prempeh, spiritual leader of the Ashanti people who inhabit the heart of Ghana.

They regard the Asanthehene's word as law and Nkrumah's slighting of their leader has roused long smouldering resentment.

When Britain's leftist Lord Listowel, a close confidante of Sir Stafford Cripps, is sworn in as Ghana's governor general this month Nkrumah will take special precautions against demonstrations from his opponents.

Must Rely On Staff

Nkrumah has repeated that Ghana intends to retain her commonwealth membership but insists that the new African state must work out its own destiny in African fashion.

He has shown his realization that underlying the political ferment is a serious economic sourness that could be the root of his troubles.

First, there is the country's dependence on the unstable price of cocoa which is only about one-half of what it was two years ago.

Ghana's cocoa farmers are grumbling about the low prices. Ashantiland, which harbors the core of opposition to Nkruman's rule, produces more than half of the cocoa crop. They remember that Nkrumah once promised them higher prices if they supported his party.

Basis of this new idea is the vast scheme to harness the Volta River for hydroelectric power to work an aluminum industry which is Ghana's best hope of economic progress.

U. S. Satellite Expert Says Something Is Wrong with Sputnik

WASHINGTON (UP)—The head of the U.S. satellite launching program indicated today the government may be cracking Sputnik II's code.

Dr. John P. Hagen, head of Project Vanguard, also said "something appears to have gone wrong" with Russia's second earth satellite.

Hagen expressed no surprise at Sunday night's report by the Italian Communist newspaper L'Unita in Rome that the dog Laika inside the second Sputnik was dead—poisoned by its last drop of food.

"I thought that was probably the case," he told the United Press.

Hagen questioned the scientific value of Laika's brief sojourn in space, although he said results of her pioneering flight are not known here.

"It's hard to see how any real scientific value can be derived from the short time she was up there," he said. He added chances of recovering the dog's body for a post-mortem examination are "very slim."

Hagen said the coded radio messages sent from Sputnik II until its radio became silent were "subject to the code cracking process."

He said U.S. officials were "not yet in a position" to say anything about their conclusions from Sputnik's signals. He said the code was difficult to analyze and required "a lot of cross-checking."

But he added, "much more difficult things than this have been cracked in the past."

Moscow Radio said telemetering instruments aboard Sputnik II which sent forth coded information both in Laika and conditions aloft had stopped functioning. It said the reception had been planned for only seven days to start with and the time was up.

Thinks Something Went Wrong

Hagen suggested however, "something went wrong" with Sputnik II's recording and communication system.

"Put two and two together—the dog's death and the cessation of signals—and it appears something has gone wrong with the experiment," he said.

In questioning the value of Laika's voyage, the Navy scientist said no one has ever observed such a highly-advanced animal during a prolong state of weightlessness such as exists in space. He said that could have been a useful result of Laika's flight "if all had been successful."

Fraternity Chapter Secedes from Nation

NEW YORK (UP)— The Columbia University Chapter of Theta Tau, a professional engineering fraternity, disclosed Sunday it has seceded from the national fraternity because the nation's constitution includes a clause limiting membership to men of "white birth." Regent of the Columbia chapter, John Adams, said the membership voted last Wednesday to form its own fraternity within the Columbia School of Engineering because of the failure of 11 years of repeated attempts to have the segregation clause removed.

Reds Claim Tops

TOKYO (UP) — Radio Peiping, official voice of Communist China, said today the "so-called superiority" of the United States over Russia is "definitely gone forever". The "only way open" to the United States is one of "peaceful coexistence with the Socialist countries and competition under conditions of peace," a broadcast said. "However, instead of soberly facing reality and revamping U.S. policy, the U.S. president continues to brag about U.S. military strength," it said.

All Russian Students Must Take Strict Scientific Course

WASHINGTON (UP) — The United States is preparing to meet the challenge of Soviet education that crams kids so full of science and math it makes their heads ache—but produces Sputnik and giant rockets.

The U.S. Office of Education released a report Sunday night detailing the extent of Russia's concentration on scientific training in schools and colleges.

The special two-year study showed, among other things, that all Russian students take 10 years of math, five of physics, five of biology, four of chemistry and one year of astronomy by the end of their 10th year in school.

The report is certain to touch off sharp repercussions and controversy among American educators and politicians.

L. G Derthick, U S education commissioner, said in releasing the report it posed a challenge to "every American to reexamine the extent to which we support our Democratic system of education."

He said the report should challenge the country to "take new interest" in meeting school and college needs.

Rep. Elizabeth Kee (R-N Y) said the report brought out the "spectacular advances" in Russia's education system and contrasted this with the "sorry attitude" of Americans toward education. She called for passage of a federal school construction bill and greater incentives for science teachers.

Rep. Joel T. Broyhill (R-Va) said he would like to see American schools given more time to "basic studies" instead of to "fringe" courses such as physical education.

Education Seen a Red Tool

Derthick said Soviet schools, rigidly controlled by the state, were putting increasing emphasis on education as a tool of the government. But the relentless pursuit of the scientific goal has taken its toll among Russia's young.

The report said nine prominent Soviet physicians charged last year that education authorities endangered the health of school children by over-loading them with lessons and homework.

They cited "chronic over-exhaustion, frequent headaches, weakened memory and vision, proneness to infectious diseases with various complications."

These and other aspects of Soviet education were detailed in the illustrated 226-page report. It was based on data furnished by government agencies, scholars, former teachers in Russia and the Soviet Ministry of Education.

President Eisenhower plans to deliver the second of his "chins up" speeches in Oklahoma City next Wednesday and he undoubtedly will propose new steps to increase the output of scientifically trained Americans.

Pupils at CSTC School to Turn Tables on Their Parents Thursday

The tables will be turned Thursday afternoon, when pupils of the Noss Laboratory School on the campus at California State Teachers College will remain home and send their parents to school.

This unique occurrence is a part of the school's observance of the 37th annual American Education Week.

The parents will replace their children in the classroom to assist in formulating new objectives for the school and to discuss special methods with teachers and student teachers. Parents will be "kept after school" to participate in a social hour arranged by the staff.

The Noss Laboratory staff, under the direction of Dr. Stephen E. Pavlak, principal of the school, have formulated a set of tentative objectives which will serve as the basis for discussions.

The objectives of a school, according to Dr. Pavlak, are the guide posts that indicate the direction in which the program is pointed.

"Our school emphasizes the development of the "whole" child — physical, mental, social, emotional, moral, and spiritual," said Dr. Pavlak. "We strive to create attitudes, interests and ideals that are wholesome and consistent with our democratic way of life The main goal of the Noss Laboratory School is to provide for the maximum growth of each child."

The following objectives have been accepted for the Noss Laboratory educational program:

1. To discover and to develop the aptitudes of the individual child.
2. To stimulate an enthusiasm for learning.
3. To develop skill in the use of the tool subjects.
4. To develop an appreciation and an understanding of the world in which we live.
5. To foster the ability to evaluate and to do critical thinking.
6. To instill proper health habits and body care.
7. To provide opportunities for desirable social experiences.
9. To encourage self-expression through creative activities.
10. To inspire highest moral and spiritual ideals.
11. To provide an atmosphere conducive to a democratic way of life.

In addition to the Thursday meeting, parents have been urged to visit the Noss School on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday to observe the regular work of the classroom. Theme for the week is An Educated People Move Freedom Forward.

Pennsylvania Farm—

State in Big Beef Showing

By UNITED PRESS

The biggest Hereford beef cattle show ever held in the East will be seen at the Pennsylvania National Livestock Exposition opening Tuesday in Harrisburg's sprawling Farm Show Building.

The dairy barn area will be filled with 514 head of horned and polled Herefords. A total of more than 1,000 beef cattle, more than 800 sheep, and about the same number of swine will compete in the exposition, which will run through Friday.

Exposition chairman Leon Falk Junior, of Pittsburgh explained that the large showing of Herefords is due to the fact that the 36th Annual National Polled Hereford show will be held in conjunction with the exposition.

Himself a breeder of polled Herefords, Falk said that this week's show will be larger than any in the East and possibly larger than any ever held in the country.

More than 200 exhibitors in all classes are competing for $75,250 in premium prize money.

Rodeo Added

An added feature of the livestock exposition will be a world championship rodeo.

Since the Harrisburg Rodeo will be the last of the 1957 season, the year's championship may be decided in the farm show arena.

More than 200 professional cowhands are expected to compete for about $10,000 in prize money.

This is the first major rodeo in the East since the Madison Square Garden Rodeo in the 1930's.

Gene Autry and Annie Oakley, popular movie and television stars will appear at each performance of the rodeo.

Judd To Speak

Rep. Walter H. Judd (R-Minn.) will address the 22nd annual banquet of the Interstate Milk Producers Co-operative in Philadelphia on November 21, the Co-operative announced today.

Judd, who serves on the House Foreign Affairs Committee and is a member of the U. S. Delegation to the United Nations, will speak on "Where Do We Stand Now in Our World Relations."

The banquet is part of a two day meeting of the dairy farm co-operative. Representatives of farmers in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, and New Jersey will attend.

Rabbi Says U. S. Must Pay the Price for Peace

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Rabbi Maurice N. Eisendrath, president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, warned Sunday that America must follow a more direct policy of co-existence or be destroyed.

Rabbi Eisendrath said "not yet are we prepared to pay the price of peace" or take the risk necessary "to disarm the fears and suspicions of our brethren across our frontiers." He spoke at the final session of the 17th biennial convention of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods.

"But we must pay the price for peace—a costly price, I must admit," Rabbi Eisendrath said, "but not one nearly so dear as we are presently paying for war and the continuing, graver, grimmer, more ghastly world-wide struggles yet to come."

The Union of American Hebrew Congregations represents 500 reform temples in the United States and Canada with a membership of more than one million.

Mobilization Conference to Open Today

PITTSBURGH (UP) — A national resources conference, sponsored by the Industrial College of the Armed Forces of Washington, opened here today.

More than 150 selected military reservists and key executives from 33 Western Pennsylvania business firms were on hand for the two-week briefing on the probable effects of emergency mobilization on the country's economy.

The conference here is one of 16 being held in cities throughout the nation. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, chairman of the board of Mellon Institute, is chairman of the meeting here.

Others on hand for the opening program included Mayor David L. Lawrence, Rep. James G. Fulton (R-Pa.), and Arch V. Murray, president of Scaife and Company.

Subjects covered by the conference constitute a condensation of those taught during a 10-month course of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces.

First Animals at Livestock Exposition

HARRISBURG (UP — First arrivals of the more than 2,700 animals entered in the Pennsylvania National Livestock Exposition today were temporarily placed in large tents adjacent to the State Farm Show Building until the opening of the exposition Tuesday morning.

The delay in the placement of the stock is due to the many changes being made in the huge area after the Pennsylvania National Horse Show this month and last week's Standardbred Horse Sale.

The 2,734 head of breeding and meat beef cattle, swine and sheep entered from 29 states and Canada are scheduled to go under the judges' eyes Tuesday morning in the first of the week-long competition for $75,217 prize money.

Selection of prize winning stock continues through Thursday and the exposition will close Friday afternoon with the sale of market steers, hogs and lambs. Registered Polled Hereford beef cattle will be sold Wednesday.

Three teams of veterinarians from the state Agriculture Department have begun the big job of inspecting the animals and health papers as a precaution against the outbreak of animal disease. A month old quarantine against breeding animals from Oklahoma due to an outbreak of anthrax was just recently lifted by the department.

A big feature of the show is the world championship rodeo to be held in conjunction with the show, featuring cowboy troubador Gene Autry and his blonde protege, Gail Davis, the modern television Annie Oakley.

Opening Tuesday night, the rodeo will be the main feature every night of the show, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

The exposition is the first of what is planned as an annual event in tribute to the rapidly growing meat production industry in Pennsylvania. It is sponsored by the state Livestock and Allied Industries Association in cooperation with the state Agriculture Department.

The 1957 state Legislature appropriated $50,000 toward the awards of the show.

700 Deaths Are Attributed to The Asian Flu

By UNITED PRESS

Flu-associated deaths across the nation have topped the 700 mark, with three states accounting for nearly half of the fatality toll.

An "alarming" flu epidemic in Georgia has been blamed for at least 92 deaths, and health officials have urged all Fulton (Atlanta) County, Ga., residents to get Asian flu inoculations.

The death toll in Pennsylvania from Asian flu, other types of influenza or flu complications reached 100 Sunday, and New York reported at least 134 flu-blamed deaths.

The United Press counted at least 716 flu connected deaths since the first outbreak of Asian flu in the country last summer.

All of Georgia's fatalities were reported in Atlanta where a month long epidemic has raged. Other sections of Georgia also were hit hard by the flu, but no reports of deaths, if any, were available outside of Atlanta.

An Atlanta health official said most of the flu victims were in the age group beginning at about 55 years old.

Charles Turner, a health department official, said although the Atlanta situation was "alarming," he believed the epidemic may have reached its peak and soon would begin declining.

Misbehavior of Children Can Not Be Put into Any Pattern

(This is the first of three dispatches in which Dr. Fritz Redl, a noted health specialist, offers down-to-earth advice to parents in coping with youthful misbehavior.)

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UP) — There are seven reasons why children misbehave.

If you understand these reasons, you can head off many disciplinary problems before they arise. And you can cope intelligently with those you cannot prevent.

This advice comes from Dr. Fritz Redl, chief of the Laboratory for Child Research at the National Institute of Mental Health. Redl, one of the world's foremost psychologists, is particularly noted for his research on the behavior problems of normal and disturbed children.

No Pat Theory

Wise discipline, Redl said in an interview, begins with the realization that there is "no nice pat theory, no simple rule of thumb" that you can apply to every instance of misbehavior.

Some parents seem to regard all misbehavior as a "harmless phase of development" to be ignored until the child "grows out of it." Others go to the opposite extreme. They treat all misbehavior as a rebellion against authority which must be stamped out with stern punitive measures.

"All such generalizations are poison," Redl said.

"Misbehavior is not all alike. It can't be handled in the same way. There are times when a child needs to be punished—and times when punishment does more harm than good.

"When your child acts up, ask yourself, 'Why did he do that? What's behind this misbehavior? What does it mean to him?'

"Figuring out the meaning of a child's misbehavior doesn't require a degree in psychology. All it requires is a little thought. A little common sense, and a willingness to look a few inches below the surface of a child's annoying conduct to find out what prompted it. Then you will know how to handle it."

Seven Basic Reasons

Here are the seven basic reasons for misbehavior listed by Redl:

1. Some objects and places cast an "almost hypnotic spell" over children. This is true of older children as well as the very young toddler who grabs for the vase left on a low table. To the normal child of 6, 8 or even 10, "a pair of scissors says 'cut with me' and a hammer says 'hit with me.' A big echoing room, like an art museum, whispers 'run and shout in me.'"

Parents should recognize the "seductiveness of gadgets and spaces" for their young, and try to protect them from "temptations which they may not be able to resist even under threat of dire punishment."

2. Children are "extremely susceptible to the influence of other people's behavior." When they are playing in groups, a kind of "gang intoxication" may set in that will cause all of them to do things which none of them would do on his own. This is particularly true of pre-adolescents. In meting out discipline for group misbehavior, it is important to enforce the principle of "collective responsibility." Trying to single out the child who "started" it will only make him a hero to the others.

3. Some conduct that parents find very annoying—for example, the "emancipation acrobatics" of the teen-ager—is a "waste by-product of normal development." The parent must set limits and enforce them, but he should also remember that "growing up is a process of finding things out the hard way and necessarily involves a lot of foolishness."

4. Any child will misbehave if he is "frustrated too long in any normal need." Moving around, making a little noise and letting off steam is a normal need. That's why a child who is cooped up in a car for a long trip, or who has to mind his manners through a long company dinner, often goes off the gold standard with a vengeance.

(Tomorrow—How to spot misbehavior that is symptomatic of emotional illness.)

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Joseph Sabol, who died 13 years ago today, November 11, 1944.
Dearest loved one, in silence you suffered,
And with patience you bore,
'Til God called you to Him
To suffer no more.
We took our sorrows all to you,
You'd smooth our troubled brow,
You always chased the clouds away,
We could not forget you now.
Gone into the Light that shineth so fair,
Gone from this earth of sorrow and care,
Resting those hands that did their best,
Gone, dear loved one, gone to rest.
What is a home without our father?
What are all the joys we meet:
When your loving smile no longer
Greets the coming of our feet!
Dearest loved one, how we miss you,
Since from earth you passed away,
And our hearts are aching sorely
As we think of you today.
Sadly missed by Wife and Children.

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Frances Zelsig, who died two years ago today, November 11, 1955.
Just a thought of sweet remembrance,
Just a memory fond and true,
Just a token of affection,
And a heartache still for you.
Just a sigh for the olden moments,
Just a smile of love anew,
Just a tear in silence falling
And a yearning just for you.
Sadly missed by Husband, Sons and Daughters.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Joseph Selepchak, Jr., who died six years ago today, November 11, 1951.
You are not forgotten, loved one,
Nor will you ever be
As long as life and memory last
We shall remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes on, we miss you more,
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.
Sadly missed by Parents, Brothers and Sisters.

Harrisburg Man Reelected Head of State Employes

HARRISBURG (UP)—Reuben H. Miller, Harrisburg, was named to his fourth consecutive term as president of the Pennsylvania State Employes Council (AFL-CIO) at its annual convention held here Saturday and Sunday.

Other officers elected included: Robert Thomas, Hamburg, vice-president; Jay Ranck, Huntingdon, treasurer; Mrs. Marjorie C. Smith, Williamsport, secretary.

Some 200 delegates attending the sessions adopted a resolution urging Gov. George M. Leader to grant state workers a $2 per week pay increase. They pointed out that the average state employe earns less than $3,500 annually and noted that no pay hike had been granted since 1953.

Lt. Gov. Roy E. Furman, who addressed the convention, supported unionization of the state employes, which has been under way for some time with Leader's blessing.

Kennan Claims Khrushchev May Be Toppled Soon

LONDON (UP) — George F. Kennan, former U.S. ambassador to Moscow and long-time student of Soviet affairs, said Sunday night Nikita S. Khrushchev soon may be toppled from power in the Soviet Union.

Khrushchev, Kennan said, had succeeded in reestablishing the leading role of the Communist Party and his own "position of personal predominance in it."

"But having reached the pinnacle of power, he is very isolated and exposed in his occupancy of it," Kennan said. "Plainly, this is not a stable position. I cannot believe it will be of long duration."

Kennan said the ouster of former Defense Minister Marshal Georgi Zhukov was "only the last and most important" of the Communist Party boss's efforts to rid the party of its unwanted partnerships with other key elements in Soviet life.

Speaking in the first of a series of six talks for the British Broadcasting Corporation, the former State Department policy planner said Khrushchev had to share power after Stalin's death with industrial planners, top military leaders, scientists and engineers.

If Khrushchev succeeds in his effort to rid himself of these partnerships, he said "the result would be the reestablishment of a form of Stalinism, only minus (thus far at least) the terrorism of the secret police."

ROCKFORD, Ill. (UP) — John Norlinder, 54, told police he and a woman he met in a bar drove out in the country Saturday to watch Sputnik II go over. He complained that the only thing he saw was a man who climbed out of the back seat and, with the aid of the woman, took $138 in cash and jewelry.

Ike Returns to Desk Following Medical Checkup

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower returns today to his desk and a heavy schedule after undergoing a head-to-toe physical examination at Walter Reed Army Medical Center.

His physicians said in advance he appeared in good health despite the pace imposed on him by Russia's recent scientific achievements.

Eisenhower entered the hospital Sunday evening after taking his grandson, David, to services earlier at the National Presbyterian Church.

The 67-year-old Chief Executive was scheduled to be released in mid-afternoon and will plunge almost immediately into another heavy work week.

He was slated to meet this afternoon with Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy and Deputy Defense Chief Donald A. Quarles. He also will take time out to see an old friend from Abilene, Kan., Charles A. Case, and his son, Charles Jr.

It was Eisenhower's first complete physical checkup since Oct. 28, 1956. At that time, he was found to be "in excellent health."

On Wednesday the President will fly to Oklahoma City, Okla., to deliver his second nationwide "chins up" address to the American people.

Atlanta Paper Halted Over Picket Dispute

ATLANTA (UP) — The Atlanta Constitution was unable to publish today when its pressmen refused to cross a picket line of striking mail room employes.

The dispute threatened to halt publication also of the afternoon Atlanta Journal, which is under the same management.

Jack Tarver, vice president and general manager of Atlanta Newspapers, Inc., charged both the mailers and the pressmen are off their jobs illegally.

The mailers' dispute began Saturday night and delayed delivery of the two newspapers' combined Sunday edition by several hours.

Spokesmen for the Atlanta Mailers Union No. 34 said mailers quit work Saturday night "to examine our contract" following what they said was a speed up of presses and a resulting increase in their work load.

The mailers said they were "locked out" by the management when they failed to return to work at a company-set deadline.

Your Health—

Physical Fitness Test Is Needed

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

For a long time I've wanted to devise some simple question-and-answer test to help you determine just how physically fit you really are.

Authoress Bonnie Prudden has already done it. Glancing over her book, "Is Your Child Really Fit?" (I've already recommended that you read it) I noticed a chapter on the physical fitness of the entire family.

Why not check this test and see how you stack up?

You are in fair shape if you can.

1. Climb 2 flights of stairs without puffing.
2. Walk a mile.
3. Carry a tenth of the weight of your body on your back for half a mile.
4. Do 3 knee-bends.

Even Better Shape

You are in pretty good shape if you can:

1. Climb 4 flights of stairs without puffing.
2. Walk a mile.
3. Carry a fifth your body weight for two miles.
4. Run a 10-minute mile.
5. Do 20 knee-bends.
5. Do 5 push-ups.
7. Do 30 sit-ups from supine position.
8. Chin yourself once.

You are in excellent shape if you can:

1. Climb 5 flights of stairs without puffing.
2. Walk 20 miles without tiring
3. Run 2 miles in 15 minutes.
4. Carry half your body weight three level miles.
5. Do 50 knee-bends.
6. Do 10 push-ups.
7. Do 20 sit-ups with one-tenth of your body weight fastened behind your neck.
8. Chin yourself 5 times.
9. Climb and descend a 16 - foot rope.

This latter series, I'll readily concede, is pretty much of a he-man schedule. But if you are in fairly good physical condition, you should be able to perform most of the routines in Group two and at least some in Group three. Check with your doctor, just to be sure.

Question and Answer

M. K.: My 9-year-old daughter complains of a bitter taste in her mouth. What causes this, and what can be done for it?

Answer: The presence of a bitter taste in the mouth may be due to an infection in the teeth, nasal sinuses or throat. It could also be due to constipation or some other digestive disorder.

Hairline Escape

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Actor Steve Terrell had a tough time deciding which TV film part to accept, that of a Navy cadet with white sidewall haircut, or that of a frontiersman with sideburns. A hairdresser solved the dilemma by giving Terrell a superbutch haircut for the Navy role and putting the hair back on with spirit gum for the role of the frontiersman.

From Broadway—

Hugh O'Brian Inherits Lot from 'Wyatt Earp'

(Vernon Scott is on vacation. Today's columnist is Hugh "Wyatt Earp" O'Brian. He discusses his inheritance from the glamorous gunfighter of the Old West.)

By HUGH O'BRIAN

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — As we were riding in from a "Wyatt Earp" location the other day, one of the boys on the bus wished he had a wealthy relative who would die and leave him a fortune.

As we all got to speculating about the pleasure of being heirs, some one suggested that in a way, all 40 of us in the company had received a common inheritance—from Wyatt Earp.

"Look," this chap began. "I've never had a relative die and leave me money, but I feel old Wyatt left me more in cash than I could reasonably expect from a close ancestor."

Leaves Cash Inheritance

He went on to point out that since "The Life and Legend of Wyatt Earp" started on ABC he had had steady work in his field of sound technician, and that he'd kept groceries on the table, clothed his wife and two kids, and put a buck or two in the savings account as well.

"If my grandfather, who was about Wyatt's age," he pointed out, "wanted to leave me an amount equal to what I've earned from work on this show, he'd have had to have been a lot wealthier than he was."

Like the rest of the company, I hadn't thought of Wyatt as a man who had left me the equivalent of a cash inheritance, but it's true.

Hugh O'Brian

In fact, a man who died in 1929, the year Wyatt died, would have had to leave an heir over 3 million dollars to bequeath an income such as I've enjoyed from playing Earp on television.

Of course in Earp's day you didn't need that much money.

A Fussy Dresser

For instance, Wyatt, who was a fussy dresser and did not stint on his wardrobe, bought his tailor-made suits for around $25. And his custom-made shirts cost him around $2.50 each.

And on the same scale, Wyatt's room at the Dodge House only set him back about $5 per week, and the check for the best steak dinner in town generally came to less than a dollar.

However, if it would have taken a fortune of more than 3 million dollars just to account for the income I've derived from playing Earp, think how much it would have taken to provide the incomes others have received because of their work on our series.

World of TV—

TV Singer Now Slim, Hungry

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP)—Merv Griffin, a singer who used to be fat and happy, is currently slim and hungry.

"I used to weigh 245 pounds. I used to eat anything I wanted to," recalled Griffin with a smack of his lips. "You can imagine how I looked. I'm five-feet-nine."

"In fact, I was so fat early in my career that when I was with this local show in San Francisco, they used to bill me as the "Mystery Singer." The station was too embarrassed to send out my picture."

Griffin, lulled into semi-somnolence by the blissful perkings of his digestive system, was unruffled by this treatment. But he did take pause one morning when he was called upon to appear on a local breakfast show with another singer, Joan Edwards.

"Well, Joan heard me sing and she said — 'Merv, you sing the end, but the blubber's got to go," recalled Griffin.

Too Fat For Her

"Then two days later, this elderly lady fan came up to me and when she found out who I was, she shrieked—'But you're so fat!" I think she got a little hysterical about it because she kept saying it over and over."

Griffin was, as another musical observer has put it, all shook up.

I decided maybe I better trim some of it off—television was beginning to come in around then, too, and I figured my fat had had it," he said.

"I did it the hard way—nothing cheese. I knocked off 11 pounds the first week. I got so enthusiastic after that, I almost ended up on lettuce leaves."

Griffin hacked off 90 pounds in four months, a feat roughly comparable to negotiating the Sahara in roller skates.

"The terrible thing about sticking to a diet in show business is that the people in it are the greatest eaters in the world," said Griffin. "Everybody's always eating—during rehearsals, before the show, after the show. Lots of people in the business will sit up most of the night in a Broadway restaurant, just munching away.

Free Balloonist

'And then, of course, when you're out of work, it's even worse. You have nothing to do but eat. I was at liberty for one point last year and ballooned to 180 pounds."

Griffin, 30, a native of San Mateo, Calif., is currently running a daily evening radio show of his own on the American Broadcasting Network. The listening audience never gets a chance to glimpse his svelte figure, but Griffin doesn't mind too much.

"Sure, I'm a little sad about not being fat anymore — I loved eating, I loved the booming laugh I used to have and I loved the way girls used to love me. No kidding, girls like fat men better than thin ones, I've found," he said.

"But then, being thin has its advantages, too. Now, I can dance the mambo without being conspicuous and it's also possible for me to get my arms around a girl. But man, am I hungry."

Public Employes Adopt Program For Pay Raise

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Pennsylvania State Council of Public Employes adopted a nine-point program, including a wage increase, at its 19th annual convention during the weekend.

The council, an affiliate of the Building Service Employes Union, represents 20,000 state employes. The group called on the state to put into effect an immediate cost-of-living wage increase for state employes.

Other proposals approved by the council to "bring public workers up to a parity with those employed in private industry" included: Fringe improvements, such as hospitalization, a state-wide Civil Service program to encompass all workers except those in policy-making jobs, and a complete review and re-study of the job classification program.

Lt. Gov. Roy E. Furman, principal speaker at Saturday's session, endorsed the council program. He said "that only a small percentage of the cost of government today is represented by the wages and salaries paid its employes."

Christ A. Pope, Uniontown, was re-elected president; Ralph F. Emery, Philadelphia, vice president; Francis L. Bollman, Reading, secretary, and David Henderson, Harrisburg, treasurer. Philadelphia was selected as the 1958 convention site.

Permanent Base May Be Formed In Antarctica

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand (UP)—Rep. John P. Saylor (R-Pa.) said today the United States may establish a permanent base in Antarctica.

Plays Second Fiddle to Teddy Bear

By ALFRED LEICH

CHICAGO (UP) — Del Ray's teddy bear is an alcoholic.

The bear's name is Butch. He's a mechanical marvel. He quaffs two pints of wine per night. And for a bear Butch's size, that's a lot of Dubonnet.

Butch is only six years old, but he's already consumed an estimated 3,240 bottles of wine.

It's all in the line of duty, of course. Butch is Del Ray's assistant in a remarkable presentation of prestidigitation at the Empire Room of the Palmer House.

The mechanical bear perches on a little stand, a bottle in one paw and a wineglass in the other.

Whenever his master lifts his own glass to his lips, the mechanical bear pours himself a drink and follows suit, without even a verbal cue.

At one point, Del Ray walks into the audience and asks a customer to tell Butch to take a drink. Butch carries out the patron's instructions to the letter. He even stops with the glass almost to his lips when the man tells him to.

Lucrative Meal Ticket

Butch the boozin' bear has become something of a meal ticket for Del Ray, and a rather lucrative one at that. But playing nursemaid and straight man to a mechanical bear is not without its drawbacks.

"I tried to teach him a card trick once but he wouldn't sober up long enough," Del Ray mused.

Seriously, he said, Butch can be a problem. He's had to be reupholstered a couple of times and it takes a portable workshop to keep him in shape.

"A waiter knocked him over once and he lost an ear," Del Ray recalled. "And once he got mechanical bursitis or something, maybe from too much elbow bending, and he couldn't lift the wine bottle."

Del Ray Also Remarkable

In many respects, Del Ray himself is more remarkable than his mechanical bear. There aren't many people who can shuffle a deck of cards with one hand, with gloves on yet.

So it's understandable if the man gets a trifle weary of playing second fiddle to a teddy bear.

"It's like the old story about the ventriloquist and his dummy," he said. "The theater manager calls the booking agent and says, 'the little guy is great, but the big guy's got to go'."

Del Ray keeps Butch's inner workings a closely guarded secret. But one thing is sure.

Butch's stomach must be made of cast iron.
